PROSPECTUS

NEW SOUTH WALES
MONT-DE-PIETE DEPOSIT AND INVESTMENT COMPANY, LIMITED, SYDNEY.
To be Registered under the Companies Statute.
CAPITAL, £50,000, in 50,000 shares of £1 each.
Deposit, with application, 1s per share; on allotment, 1s 6d per share.
It is not expected that more than 5s per share will be required to be called up, but of every call (not to exceed 2s 6d per share) there will be intervals of three months, and three months' notice will be given.

Directors:
The Hon. JNO. SUTHERLAND | The Hon. S. H. TERRY
W. H. PALING, Esq. | T. THOMPSON, Esq.
A. H. M'CULLOCH, Esq., M.P.
Solicitor:
S. C. BROWN, Esq.
Brokers:
MELHADO and CURTIS, Pitt-street, Sydney.

This Company is being formed for the purpose of founding in New South Wales an institution on the basis of the Mont de Piété Companies, which have been established at New York and other American cities, the shares of which are now at an enormous premium, in one instance at as much as 800 per cent. A similar Company has recently been started at Melbourne. The whole of the necessary capital was at once subscribed, and the Institution has just commenced business with excellent prospects of success.

There are at the present moment 46 pawnbrokers in Sydney, the present expenses of whom are very large, at least ten times larger than would be necessary to carry on the operations of the proposed Company. The prevailing rate of interest charged by the existing pawnbrokers amounts to more than sixty per cent. per annum. The result is, that many persons requiring temporary loans refrain if possible from having any transactions with a pawnbroker.

The Mont de Piété Company, Limited, would make advances at about one-third the rates at present charged, thus at once securing a large and remunerative business, while at the same time its operations would be a great boon to the more necessitous classes.

The Rev. W. Edward, in his able article upon Monts de Piété, which appeared in the London Nineteenth Century of last June, after commenting upon the large operations of the French Monts de Piété, and the advantages they are to the working classes of France, asks why such an institution cannot be transplanted to British soil. At Paris alone, the Mont de Piété lends every year 77,000,000 francs, or more than £3,000,000 sterling. The profits on such transactions are enormous, for they are not limited to the very poor. The struggling tradesman, in want of a small loan to tide him over a difficulty, can, as a matter of business, obtain an advance on the deposit of his securities without any of the discredit which attaches to an appeal to the pawnshop.

The Company will be prepared to discount Bills of Exchange and Promissory Notes, collaterally secured in any satisfactory way.

The Company will also act as a Deposit Bank, and will be prepared to allow remunerative rates of interest to Depositors. Judging from the experience of similar institutions in other cities, it is not thought probable that more than one-fourth of the Capital will be called up.

The Provisional Directors, with confidence, submit this Prospectus to the public, feeling sure that as the business to be engaged in is more than ordinarily profitable, so the dividends may reasonably be expected to be large, say at least 25 per cent.

The Company may, if decided upon by the Provisional Directors, be deemed to be floated when 25,000 shares have been applied for.

The only charge on the Capital of the Company will be the usual expenses of Advertising, Brokerage, &c.

Application for Shares will be received by the undersigned, from whom prospectuses may be obtained.

NEW CALEDONIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NOUMEA, FEB. 20.

It is a subject of general surprise here that none of the large banking institutions of Australia have extended their business to Noumea. That there is an excellent opening is the opinion of the best informed. The rate of interest charged upon the most unexceptional security is 12 per cent., which is the recognized legal rate here.

Our exports are increasing, and likely to do so, especially in minerals, though the public need to be on their guard at statements such as are once more being sent by a "mining correspondent in Noumea" to the Australian press. The currency here is in silver, and every mail, wheelbarrows, loaded with boxes of cambecome dollars, are trundled through the streets en route for transport to Australia, in payment, at a heavy discount for exchange, for the cargoes of merchandise brought us from thence. The inconveniences of the silver currency are very great. A settler sells a number of cattle or sheep. He is paid in heavy dollars, and obliged to get help of some kind to carry away the weight of silver, which, like all others in town, he has to take care of as best he may, as there is no bank to pay it into, upon which he could draw by cheque. Unless he is the possessor of a heavy safe, he has to hide his money. Thieves are aware of the fact.

Nothing strikes the traveller in New Caledonia more forcibly, because practically, than the almost total absence of roads. Other means of communication are also as unsatisfactory. A few coasters which have to contend against a pretty constant strong head wind when returning to Noumea, are only less inviting than the regular small mail steamer, which can stay but a limited time at each place of call. If there were roads in the interior visitors could join the steamer at different places, riding from poste to "poste." But the roads remain on paper or, more inexcusable still, on sign-boards. On a visit to one of the country "postes" made by the former Governor, Monsieur Olry, who really desired to develop the country, he was no doubt charmed to see several sign-posts proclaiming to all readers, "Road to——," and fine straight roads stretching in the various indicated directions. Had time permitted the Governor to find out what a very short distance the traveller passed ere these roads conducted him into the virgin forest, the tune sung by those interested in the erection of the pretty sign-posts would possibly have been less jubilant.

Two years ago, a really fine piece of road was made in one of the country districts leading past a certain river, over which a pretty bridge was constructed which every settler predicted would be washed away by the first flood—as proved the case. The good road remains, leading to the dilapidated bridge destroyed 12 months ago, and not a word of warning to the traveller who would lose his horse, perhaps his own life, should he attempt to ford the dangerous river. Settlers driving their cattle to market are often obliged to clear passages for them through the scrub.

New Caledonia is practically bridgeless and roadless. After 29 years' occupation it is perhaps one of the most difficult colonies for transport or communication that the traveller could find. If a few miles of roads were made here and there throughout the colony, leading to different ports, an impetus would be given to the operations of the colonists and encouragement to vessels to make regular calls to ship produce. As matters are, suggest any pursuit but stock-raising to a colonist, and the natural reply is, "Certain failure, it would cost me more to get my produce to market than it would realise when there." As a consequence such a thing as lucerne—in constant demand in Noumea—can be grown only by those whose farms border the sea and whom it well pays for keeping a boat expressly for its transport to Noumea.

The great heat which set in on the 12th lasted till the evening of the 16th, when a change to rain set in. We have had copious falls throughout the country, and it promises to continue. Already the growth of grass is almost incredible—one can almost see it grow. Travellers over the blue grass downs of Queensland used to assert that they could hear the grass growing as they lay down amidst the bursting blades. At present we rival Queensland.

The rain came none too soon, for the country was in a sad state from drought and locusts. These latter are crawling about in millions upon millions, and it is feared they will much injure the young grass. 'Tis in their crawling state, when from a few days to two or three weeks old, that these pests are the most destructive. They are also the most easily destroyed at this stage.

A bold attempt at evasion was made on the 22nd by six convicts at Ile Nou, who, in broad daylight and in presence of their guards, seized the boat, which as usual had arrived early in the morning with the rations of meat from Noumea. They dashed into the boat, threw the crew into the water, and tried to make off with the boat. The surveillants fired upon them, killed one, and wounded three others—one of them seriously—and thus put an end to that insane attempt, for the convicts had not the ghost of a chance to succeed in their efforts.

This instance strongly illustrates the uphill task it is now for the authorities to maintain a proper discipline over these desperate men. One has lately launched into a new line for securing his liberty. A parcel of documents has been forwarded to the Governor from the Minister in Paris for further inquiry. These papers purport to be certificates from the Commissaire of Police, the municipal council, the directeur of the Penitentiaire Administration, and from the Governor himself, recommending a convict named Petiteau for pardon, in consequence of his courage and devotion in saving a lady resident of Noumea, who with her two children—during a visit to the country—were drowning in the middle of a broad and dangerous river, through the upsetting of a boat. The action of the man was praised in these documents in the highest terms. All the requisite office stamps and signatures were in perfect order. The Governor's signature only seemed a little doubtful, but it might have passed, with many others perfectly imitated, but for the unofficial heading of the Governor's certificate, which caused suspicion and led to the discovery of this singular series of forgeries, which, as a matter of course, Petiteau knows nothing about.

A new weekly in the clerical interest, and named Le Nouvelliste, was started here on the 18th February. To judge by its two first issues, it promises to be an acquisition, in a literary point of view, at any rate. We now have one bi-weekly and three weekly papers, including the Moniteur.

MARCH 3.

The Nickel Company of Noumea is offering Exchange with Australia at 2½ per cent.

The mail arrived on the 1st, and for the first time since the outbreak of smallpox in Sydney has come up to the town and moored at the wharf, to the great satisfaction of all concerned. Quarantine has ceased. The well-known face of Captain Calder, so long connected with this vessel as chief officer, gives pleasure to many old friends.

Copious rains have fallen, and the country rejoices. It is now fine.

A FENIAN SCHEME.—"Atlas," in the London World of January 11, says:—"Mr. Bright's speech at Birmingham has recalled attention to the ferocious language used at the Chicago Convention, but neither he nor his critics seem to be aware that a scheme showing a much deeper hatred to England than mere talk about dynamite engaged the attention of a secret committee of the Fenian organization. This was nothing less than the fitting-out of a pirate vessel—a Fenian Alabama—to prey on English commerce. The scheme was carefully considered, and the idea was to purchase, through third and unsuspected parties, a swift steamer in England, to get her armament in the United States, and convey it to her at some point in the ocean. It was intended to provision her for 12 or 18 months, so that it would not be necessary for her to touch at a port during that time; and the hope was that she would do irreparable injury to English trade. There would have been no difficulty in getting a captain and crew to risk their necks in the undertaking; but the expense of the plan and the difficulty of carrying it out rather damped the ardour of its promoters. It would probably not be wise to assume that it has been wholly abandoned."

LAW REPORT.

SUPREME COURT.—WEDNESDAY, MARCH 8.

Banco Court.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice FAUCETT and a jury of four.)

CAMPBELL V. SOUTHWELL.

Mr. Salomons, Mr. Pring, and Mr. Smyth, instructed by Messrs. Stephen, Laurence, and Jaques, appeared for the plaintiff; Mr. Pilcher and Dr. Donovan, instructed by Messrs Gannon and Langdon, of Goulburn, by Mr. G. E. R. Jones, appeared for the defendant.

The declaration was for assaulting the plaintiff, and £1000 damages were claimed. The defendant paid 1s. into Court. The plaintiff, Frederick Campbell, is the manager for his father, the Hon. Charles Campbell, of a station on the Molonglo River.

The defendant and some other selectors in the neighbourhood claim that a public right-of-way exists along a track which runs through purchased land forming part of the run. This track is a short cut to Queanbeyan. The claim to this right-of-way is the subject of an action (Gibbs v. Young), set down for trial at the present sittings in the Banco Court. The track branches from a lane adjoining the station, and goes across a 40-acre paddock of purchased land. This paddock is fenced in. On 1st August a meeting of neighbouring selectors was held with reference to the closing of a slip-panel which used to give access through the fence to the track; and on the same day the defendant with a deputation from that meeting waited on the plaintiff and asked him to put a gate or slip-panel at that part of the lane where the fence crossed the track. The plaintiff replied in writing, refusing this request. On the next day 10 or 12 men assembled in the lane opposite the track. The plaintiff was standing in the lane with his back against the fence where the track crossed the paddock. A man named Young was there with an axe for the purpose of cutting down the fence, and the defendant, in order to move the plaintiff out of the way of Young, who was attempting to chop down one of the posts, pushed the plaintiff aside, and when he returned to the same position, took him by the coat under his arms, and moved him away. There was no ill-feeling manifested. This was the assault complained of. Mr. Salomons, for the plaintiff, claimed substantial damages, as the assault had been committed in the assertion of an alleged right-of-way, and also for injury to his client's feelings. Evidence on the other hand was given for the defendant, that the track had been in use by the public, without objection by the owners of the station, for more than twenty years, and that the defendant used no more force than was necessary to remove the plaintiff from obstructing Young and his party in the exercise of their right to cut away the fence closing the public right-of-way.

The trial began on Monday, and yesterday counsel had concluded their addresses to the jury. This morning his Honor Mr. Justice Faucett summed up.

Verdict for the plaintiff; damages, £50.

(Before his Honor Sir GEORGE INNES and a jury of four.)

KERWIN V. PEARSON.

Jury: Messrs. W. S. King, James Barden, Wm. Harris, and Laurence Hession.

Mr. Bruce Smith, instructed by Mr. Thompson, agent for Mr. Welsh, appeared for the plaintiff; Mr. Salomons, Q.C., instructed by Mr. De Lissa, appeared for the defendant.

This was an action substantially for breach of an agreement to sell sheep.

The hearing had not concluded when the Court rose.

Jury Court.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice WINDEYER and a jury of four.)

COHN V. VICTORIA INSURANCE CO.

Mr. Rogers and Mr. O'Connor, instructed by Messrs. Shorter, Fitzgerald, and Asher, appeared for the plaintiff; Mr. Salomons, Q.C., and Mr. Want, instructed by Messrs. Creagh and Williams, appeared for the defendants.

The declaration was on a fire policy effected with the defendants in the amount of £500. Pleas—(1.) That the premises were not destroyed. (2.) That it was a term of the policy that 15 days' notice of the loss should be given. (3.) A condition in the policy that the loss was to be adjusted on a certain day. (4.) That the description of the premises was to be a true one, and such as would give the defendants a fair idea of what they were insuring. (5.) That it was a term of the policy that any change in the mode of occupation of the premises was to be notified to the defendants. Issue.

The premises insured were situate at Cobar. One of the buildings was an hotel called Tattersall's Hotel—a building of one story, facing the street. Adjoining this building, but not connected with it by any doorway, and standing a little back from the line of the hotel, was a long building used at the time when the policy was effected as a photographic studio and for other purposes, but afterwards as a store. The next building, called the Pantheon, consisted of a large oblong room, used in the daytime by commercial travellers for the display of their goods, and at night for concerts, dancing, and dramatic and musical entertainments. Round this room were the sleeping rooms belonging to the hotel; and this, in fact, was the part of the building used for the accommodation of visitors. This building was separated from the studio or store by a passage which was described by some witnesses as being 2 feet 6 inches, and by others as being 9 feet wide. The roof of the store extended over the passage, and joined the roof of the Pantheon. The policy of insurance was effected in Bourke by Miller, the plaintiff's agent, with Layard, the agent of the insurance company. Miller showed Layard a sketch of the ground plan of the buildings; but Layard said it would not do, as it was on a separate sheet of paper, and the company required the plan to be made on the proposal itself. This plan was not produced in evidence. Layard accordingly made a drawing on the proposal, which he said was exactly like the one given him by Miller. He submitted this to Miller for his approval. This plan showed the hotel and the Pantheon as separate buildings, and marked the distance between them as being 60 feet; it did not show the "studio." By a note appended to this plan the Pantheon was described as a separate building, with one fireplace. The plaintiff said that this plan was not like the one he sent to his agent Miller. The policy was granted in 1877. In 1878 it was renewed. Before the fire the Pantheon was used as a drapery store. The fire took place on 4th February, 1879, when the Pantheon was destroyed, but little damage was done to the part used as the hotel. No notice of the loss was given until six months after the fire.

It was contended on behalf of the defendants that the proposal for the insurance did not include the Pantheon, and that the reason why that building was shown on the plan made on the proposal, was that it was an adjacent building, and that the hotel and the Pantheon were two separate buildings. It was also contended that as the plaintiff had not given notice of the loss within 15 days he could not recover for the loss.

The trial of the action lasted three days. Yesterday counsel had concluded their addresses to the jury. This morning, his HONOR, in summing up to the jury, said that the action was brought to recover the amount insured by the plaintiff in the defendants' office. Some transactions had occurred by which the plaintiff parted with his interest in the policy; but that would not affect this case. The whole system of fire insurance was based on the supposition of entire good faith between the party insuring and the party insured, and the law was, that if there was a failure to disclose a material fact, whether the insured did or did not think it material, in effecting the insurance, then the insured could not recover for loss covered by the policy. The policy in this case had certain conditions endorsed on it. The defendants set up that the plaintiff failed to comply with some of these conditions. If the plaintiff was entitled to anything, he was entitled to £400. Some time before the fire the plaintiff made a proposition to the defendants through his agent, Miller. Miller saw Layard, the defendants' agent at Bourke, and Layard asked Miller to fill up the form, which he accordingly did. The first question arose on the 4th plea, which was the material plea. This issue was raised on the first condition of the policy. The defendants say they were absolved from liability by the failure of the plaintiff to correctly describe the risk. The plaintiff was responsible for the act of his agent, and if he had misled the defendants the plaintiff could not recover. The jury should decide whether the plaintiff did disclose all proper circumstances necessary to enable the defendants to estimate the risk they ran. On the back of the proposal are further particulars, which must be looked at as indicating the nature of the description required. It was described as occupied by Henry Gillett, "publican." From the evidence it appeared that part of the premises was used for theatrical entertainments, though there was conflicting evidence how it was fitted up. A question for the jury was whether the plaintiff ought to have made the defendants aware of the use to which this building was put. A question asked on the proposal was whether there was any manufactory, theatre, &c., within 100 feet of the building insured. No answer was given to this question. The jury would have to determine whether in point of fact that omission was material. The plaintiff says that in point of fact this building was not used as a theatre. The twelfth question, too, was not answered. Below that was a ground sketch of buildings and adjacent buildings. The history of that sketch was this: Miller brought a sketch to Layard, who says he copied it on to the proposal, and Miller filled up the proposal. That was Layard's account. Now, there was a great difference between the sketch and the buildings as actually existing. In point of fact, instead of a gap of 60 feet between the hotel and Pantheon, there was a store adjoining the hotel and a covered way from the store to the Pantheon. Was this a failure to communicate to the insurers information which they ought to have had? That was on the assumption, made by the plaintiff, that the hotel and Pantheon were connected, and could be regarded as one building. By the defendants' evidence, however, there was a larger space between the store than alleged by the plaintiff. This became material when the plan was considered. A plan was required of the "adjacent buildings showing distances." Would not this give the defendants to understand that the Pantheon was an adjacent building, distance 60 feet from the Hotel? If it did, then was this a material misrepresentation. Evidence for the plaintiff was given that before the second premium was renewed a conversation took place between the plaintiff and Layard about the mistake in putting the distance at 60 feet, and that the plaintiff stated that the distance between the store and the Pantheon was only 2 feet 6 inches; this, however, was denied by Layard. The mere innocent concealment of a material fact was enough to vitiate a policy of insurance. The jury would also have to consider what the insurance company thought they were insuring. The policy described the risk as on "a wooden building detached," and "known as Tattersall's Hotel." Then, after the fire, the plaintiff sent in a declaration describing the buildings as "Tattersall's Hotel, Cobar, consisting of a block of buildings consisting of hotel, theatre, and blacksmith's shop." If that was a proper description, was the description in the proposal a proper one? There was a clause that notice of loss was to be given within 15 days. By a decision of an Irish Court it was held that such provision was directory only; but as it was a doubtful point, his Honor would not nonsuit the plaintiff, but would ask the jury to find specially whether notice had been given within the 15 days. The next question was as to the second condition of the proposal. The defendants say that not only were they misled, but a change in the occupation was made, and that after the insurance the Pantheon was turned into a store, and let to a separate owner. If the jury found that there was a change of occupation whereby the risk was increased, the defendants would not be liable. His Honor left the following questions for the jury to answer:—1. Did the plaintiff fail to disclose any material particulars as to the character of the premises by which the degree of risk could be justly estimated? 2. Did he furnish particulars of his loss within 14 days? 3. Was there a change made in the occupation of the premises whereby the risk was increased? The jury returned a verdict for the defendants on all the issues, and to the questions submitted to them answered (1) yes, (2) no, (3) yes.

METROPOLITAN QUARTER SESSIONS.

WEDNESDAY.

The Metropolitan Quarter Sessions were resumed at Darlinghurst this morning. Mr. District Court Judge Cohen presided, and Mr. J. P. Healey prosecuted for the Crown.

CASES POSTPONED.

William Denham, Charles Parton, and Henrietta Parton, charged with assault and robbery, were, in the absence of the prosecutor, released upon their own recognizance to appear again when called upon.

Thomas Binks, charged with embezzlement, was, in the absence of a principal witness, released upon his own recognizance to appear again when called upon.

William Smalley, charged with inflicting grievous bodily harm, was bound over to appear at the next Quarter Sessions.

Cornelius Riordan, charged with inflicting grievous bodily harm, was, in the absence of a material witness, released on recognizances to appear again when called upon.

Michael Day, charged with feloniously wounding, was remanded until the following Sessions.

INFLICTING GRIEVOUS BODILY HARM.

James Patterson, publican, was charged with having, on February 21, inflicted grievous bodily harm upon John M'Nulty. Mr. Roberts, sen., appeared for the defence. Prosecutor was a waggonette proprietor, and lived in Alma-street, Darlington. On the day named he saw prisoner at his public-house in Gipps-street. He had two or three drinks, and went into the parlour to have another, when prisoner said, "What are you doing here? get out." He replied that he had as much right there as any one else, as he paid his way. He went, however, into the bar and asked for a drink. Prisoner gave him a push and knocked him down, and after some high words struck him on the head with a bottle, severing an artery, and inflicting an ugly but not a dangerous wound. The defence was that prosecutor was intoxicated when he asked for drink, and that on this account prisoner refused to serve him with more. Prosecutor then became abusive, and struck prisoner in the face, when prisoner in self-defence struck him in the heat of the moment with the bottle. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty, and prisoner was discharged.

Philip Purcell and Stewart Waite were charged with having on February 12 inflicted grievous bodily harm on John King. Mr. Slattery appeared for the defence. On the day named, Constable Felton saw Purcell fighting with prosecutor in Jones-street, Ultimo. He went up and found prosecutor much bruised, and lying insensible on the ground in a fit. Prosecutor was a labourer, and lived at Campbelltown. He met Purcell and another young man in Harris-street. They asked him if he was going to shout, and he replied in the negative, as they were strangers to him. Purcell said, "We will make you." He walked into Jones-street and sat down there. The men followed him, and after he had again refused to shout he stood up, when Purcell struck him on the back of the head with his fist. This knocked him down. While he was on the ground Purcell kicked him twice on the side. The other man lifted him up, and, although he said he did not want to fight, pushed him against Purcell, who struck him in the face, knocked him down again, and kicked him in the back. Purcell also cut his hat, boots, and trousers with a knife. When he recovered his senses he was in the Infirmary. Two witnesses corroborated prosecutor's statement. Waite was arrested for aiding and abetting in the assault. He was the man who, it was said, picked prosecutor up, and to make him fight, pushed him against Purcell. The defence was that prosecutor was the first aggressor, that Purcell acted in self-defence, and that Waite did not interfere in the fight at all. Several persons gave prisoners excellent characters. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty, and they were discharged.

INDECENT ASSAULT.

Frank Marcen, an Austrian, about 26 years of age, was charged with having on November 14 indecently assaulted Maude Mary Usher. Mr. Rogers appeared for the defence. Prosecutrix was 13 years of age. She lived with her father in Alderson-street, Redfern. On the day named she was sent by a woman with some keys to prisoner's house in Walker-street, where the offence was alleged to have been committed. Prisoner was arrested by Constable Anderson, and admitted his guilt to him. The defence was that prosecutrix was a consenting party. Several persons, including two police sergeants, gave prisoner a good character. The jury returned a verdict of guilty, and he was sentenced to two years' imprisonment.

This concluded the business.

POLICE.

CENTRAL POLICE COURT.

Mr. Clarke, S.M., sat yesterday on the Criminal side and Mr. Crane, S.M., on the Summons side of the Court.

Amy Taylor, 10, was brought before the Court by Constable Houghton, who about 7 p.m. of Tuesday took her into custody for protection. He had seen her lying about, and in reply to his questions she said that her parents were dead; that her aunt, with whom she had lived, having ill-used her, and turned her out of her house, she was afraid to return thither; her body bore marks of rough usage. Discharged, with a recommendation for admittance into the Benevolent Asylum.

John M'Laren was charged with larceny. Constable Manley deposed to the apprehension of prisoner on Monday evening, and produced a watch he had received from a pawnbroker named Dawes; he charged prisoner with having, on the 25th February, stolen the watch from the person of one James Hogg; and, in reply to the charge, prisoner said that he bought it of a man, a stranger, "a hawker-looking fellow," for 12s. 6d., and offered it to Dawes for 15s. Thomas Dawes deposed that on the 28th February the prisoner offered him for sale the watch before the Court; which he found, on looking at the police report, corresponded with the description of one said to have been stolen; he mentioned this to prisoner, and that he must detain the watch; prisoner replied, "I know it is crooked, smash it up, I hope there will be no more about it." James Hogg, of the Glebe, deposed that the watch produced is his property; he lost it somehow, somewhere about the Glebe, on the 25th February; he missed it early in the morning of the 26th; the watch is worth 40s., and the silver chain to which it was attached was worth 5s. Prisoner repeated to the Bench the statement he made to the constable. Committed for trial at the Quarter Sessions, and allowed bail for his appearance.

Michael F. Molloy, late of Blayney, was charged with having, with intent to defraud the creditors of his insolvent estate, falsified a certain document—to wit, a cheque. Thomas A. Godson, accountant, deposed that he was employed by the creditors of defendant's estate to proceed to Blayney and examine his books of account, and proceeded thither for that purpose on the 23rd October last year; in examining his bank-book and comparing the entries therein with his cheque-book, he found the butt of cheque No. 86269, drawn for £120, his own No. being 3016, the bank No. erased and the latter substituted, and marked M. A. M. £120; M. A. M. are the initials of defendant's mother's name; eight or ten days later he again noticed it, and examined Mrs. Molloy's account in the ledger, but it was not debited with the amount of the cheque referred to; the defendant is debited with the amount in the bank book under date of 8th August; he a second time referred to the butt of the cheque 8 269, and found that "M A M." had been altered to "M. A. Martin, wheat and potatoes;" there is no account of M. A. Martin in the ledger, but of Martin Brothers; the wheat book contained no entry of any transaction bearing upon £120; the result of the examination was the discovery that £120 had been taken out, which should have formed a portion of his insolvent estate, and is not accounted for as a liability in his books; the butt has been falsified, and thereby the complexion of the transaction is altered; it shows that the creditors have been defrauded by this act to the extent of £120; defendant told him that he would make it worth his while if he would pull him through by inducing his creditors to take 10s. in the pound; he mentioned at first £50, and afterwards £100 as the reward; the books showed that he was in a state of insolvency. John A. Wharrie, manager of the Commercial Bank at Blayney, proved the payment of the cheque in question to the credit of Mrs. Molloy, defendant's mother. Other evidence mostly of a pro forma character was given, and defendant was committed for trial at the Central Criminal Court. Bail allowed. Four other charges are entered, which will come on for hearing to-day.

In the Summons Court, Edward Pritchard was fined 19s. for neglecting to affix a stamp upon a receipted bill; and Fanny Bendix was fined 20s. for assaulting Ada Kong.

WATER POLICE COURT.

Mr. Marsh, S.M., was occupied yesterday in dealing with a number of small debt cases, and Mr. Buchanan, S.M., presided in the Charge Court.

George Harris, a ship's cook, was charged with stealing a pair of boots, value 4s., and the property of Messrs. Chas. Moore and Co. It seemed that between 12 and 1 o'clock on Tuesday, and while a sale was proceeding at Messrs. Moore's auction mart, the prisoner, who was there, took a pair of boots from a trunk and placed them under his coat. He was observed by one of the spectators, who gave information of the theft, and caused the prisoner to be arrested. The offender was sentenced to 14 days' imprisonment with hard labour. John Davis was sentenced to be incarcerated for a similar period, during which he will be kept at hard labour, for having stolen a bottle of oysters, value 1s., the property of John Emerson. Simon, a Chinese cabinetmaker, was charged with having in his possession a pine board reasonably suspected to be stolen, and the possession of which he could not satisfactorily account for. The prisoner was proceeding along George-street on Tuesday evening, carrying the pine board, when Constable Robins went up to him and questioned him. The prisoner stated that he had obtained the board from the establishment of a Chinese cabinetmaker, whom he named. The constable went to the place indicated in company with the prisoner, whose story was not confirmed. The prisoner was sent to gaol and ordered to be kept at hard labour for a month.

A number of offenders were also dealt with for drunkenness, using obscene language, &c. A woman, who was charged with having been drunk and used obscene language, was ordered to pay two fines, amounting to £6; and a man, against whom there were similar charges, was ordered to forfeit £3 5s.

DEPUTATIONS.

BOGAN REQUIREMENTS.

Yesterday, a deputation, consisting of the members for the Bogan (Sir P. A. Jennings and Mr. Cass), P. A. Polin (Mayor of Coonamble), Aldermen T. A. Jones and G. Cobb, waited on the Minister for Works, for the purpose of urging the necessity for providing a bridge over the Castlereagh, at Gilgandra. In reply to the representations of the deputation, Mr. Lackey promised to consult with the Engineer for Roads on the subject. The Minister for Lands was afterwards waited on by the same deputation, regarding the desirableness of increasing the area of the present commonage at Coonamble, and requesting that that portion situate on the left bank of the Coonamble Creek should be exchanged for the 6000 acres on the right bank and at present used as a temporary common. Sir John Robertson promised the matter his earliest consideration, and intimated that he would confer with the Under Secretary that afternoon, with a view of meeting the wishes of the deputation, if practicable. Matters pertaining to the common bylaws and other district requirements were also brought under the notice of the various heads of departments.

SOUTH HEAD ROADS.

A deputation, consisting of the Hon. A. Campbell, M.L.C., Messrs. Thomas Buckland, W. Wallis, and R. A. Hunt, J.P., waited upon the Minister for Works, yesterday afternoon, for the purpose of laying before him a statement of the affairs of the Commissioners of the South Head Roads Trust. From the statements made by the deputation, it appeared that the commissioners had received a proposal to resign from the Minister, and they wished, before resigning, to have some assurance for the proper custody and control of the roads and the abolition of the tolls, and also to be relieved from all further responsibility. They pointed out the difficult position which they had occupied of late years in consequence of want of funds, and said that the upper road had been torn up in the construction of the tramway to Waverley, and not a penny had been given by the Government to make it good again; also, that the New South Head-road had been destroyed over and over again by the carting of sand over it for the purpose of reclaiming Rushcutter Bay. They objected to handing over the roads to the municipalities, and advocated that both roads should either be held by the Government as military roads, and placed under the control of the Commissioner for Roads; or that they should be maintained as trust roads, and that the mayors of the different boroughs should be appointed ex officio commissioners. It was also urged that the funds at the disposal of the commissioners should be supplemented in the same way that the funds of municipalities are, viz., pound for pound. Mr. Lackey, in reply, said that the present state of the roads was a reflection upon the whole community. The road was one of the principal drives out of Sydney, and instead of being made a great attraction to visitors, had been left to get into the state that it is now. Without desiring to make a charge against anybody, he must say that it was a misfortune that this should have come about. The Government were willing to step in and do what they could to restore the road to a good state, and they thought that the better course to adopt would be for them to take over the roads, if the trustees desired to resign their positions, and give to each municipality that part of the roads which was included within its boundaries. As a condition to this, the Government would insist upon the abolition of the tolls. A subsidy would be given, because the road was a military road, and the councils would have to keep the road in good order with that subsidy; otherwise the right of withholding the subsidy, which would be stipulated for, would be exercised. It appeared to him that these were the only conditions upon which they could come to terms; but, if the trustees thought they could do better with the road in their own hands, it would be the duty of the Government to give the matter further consideration. Mr. Campbell said he did not believe the handing over of the road to the councils would give satisfaction, but the commissioners were quite willing to leave the matter entirely in the hands of the Government. The interview then terminated.

PETERSHAM.—Meeting held on 27th February. Present: The Mayor (Alderman Gelding) in the chair; and Aldermen Barnett, Cubitt, Hughes, Henderson, Paling, M'Gill, Tighe, and Barrell. Minutes of previous meeting, and special meeting held for the election of Mayor, read and confirmed. A letter read from Mr. H. H. Hyman, manager of the recently-established branch of the Bank of Australasia, calling attention to the great benefit likely to arise from the opening of a local bank, and asking for the support and patronage of the council individually and collectively. It was decided, after a short discussion, to leave the matter over till next meeting. Letter read from Mrs. Potter, asking the council for some compensation for a partition which was removed when they first leased her premises and had not been replaced. Moved by Alderman Hughes, seconded by Alderman Cubitt,—"That £2 compensation be granted." Amendment moved by Alderman M'Gill, seconded by Alderman Barrell,—"That the partition be re-erected by the council, and all gas-fittings left in the late council-chambers be removed." On being put to the vote the amendment was negatived. The original motion was then put and carried. Letter from Mr. W. Playford and another, offering to contribute £12 towards the cost if the council would metal a portion of the Windsor-road now being formed near their property, conditionally on the work being performed at once. It was decided to accept the offer. Letter from the day labourers employed by the council asking for an additional 4d. per day, so as to bring their weekly earnings to £2 2s. It was decided, on motion by Alderman Barrell, seconded by Alderman M'Gill, to comply with the request. Letter from the Gas Company, stating that instructions had been given for the erection of the additional lamps applied for by the council. Two letters read from the Audit Department, one asking for vouchers in reference to the grant of £100 for tree-planting, and the other for £300 granted for purchase of land for school of arts. The council clerk explained that the painting of tree protectors was now going on, and when completed the vouchers would be sent in. With regard to the other item, Mr. Priddle, the original owner of the land purchased by the council, was in England, and until he returned they could not comply with the request. Letter from Mr. H. Harry asking permission to erect an awning and balcony to his property at the corner of Denison-road and Toothill-street. Granted, subject to being approved of by the works overseer. Letters from Mr. W. H. Paling and Mr. F. Senior, complaining of offensive drains in Merton and Cambridge streets. The Mayor to have the complaints reported upon. Letter from the secretary to the Attorney-General, in reference to the bylaws recently passed as to earth closets, asking the council to state under what statute, and section in same, the bylaws purported to be made. This matter was ordered to stand over till next meeting. Letter from Constable Robert Chandler, inspector of nuisances for Annandale and Sydenham Wards, in reply to one from the council giving him a month's notice, stating he was prepared to relinquish his position without any such formality, leaving the question of salary to the council. It was decided, on motion by Alderman Barnett, seconded by Alderman Paling, to allow Mr. Chandler one month's salary. On the motion of Alderman M'Gill, seconded by Alderman Henderson, the best thanks of the council were ordered to be conveyed to the Inspector-General of Police for allowing Chandler to act as inspector, the only reason for dispensing with his services being that an inspector for the whole borough had been appointed. Letter from a number of ratepayers, complaining of the defective drainage of Hobbs-street, off Denison-road, and asking that something might be done to remedy it. The matter was referred to the public works committee. Letter from Mr. T. Saywell, stating that owing to the forming of Union-street, he had been cut off from a certain amount of water supply to his brickworks. The writer asked the council to lay pipes across the road so as to admit of the surface water finding its way as formerly to the works in question, and further offered to bear the expense involved. Alderman Henderson moved, and Alderman Hughes seconded,—"That Mr. Saywell's offer be accepted, and the work carried out." Aldermen M'Gill and Barnett moved an amendment to refer the matter to the works committee for report. On being put to the vote there were four in favour of each proposal, and the Mayor gave his casting vote for the original motion. Letters were read, accompanied by plans, from Mr. A. Davis and the secretary of the Haymarket Building Society, dedicating certain portions of land for street purposes. Some discussion ensued, the Mayor pointing out that it was necessary all streets in property subdivided since the passing of the "Width of Streets and Lanes Bill," should be at least 66 feet wide, while that now offered to the council was only 50 feet. Alderman Paling moved that the council decline to accept the dedication unless increased to 66 feet, which was seconded by Alderman Cubitt and carried. Letter from Mr. D. Ware, respecting some repairs necessary to the footpath in Brighton-street, was referred to the works committee. The usual report from the works overseer regarding amount of day labour performed was read and adopted. The finance committee's report, recommending payment of £253 5s. 2d. in satisfaction of sundry accounts, was also read and adopted. Alderman Paling moved,—"That in future it is desirable that no more white metal be used on the streets of this borough." There being no seconder, the motion lapsed. Alderman Cubitt moved,—"That tenders be invited for supplying the Petersham Council with white metal for the current municipal year." Seconded by Alderman M'Gill, and carried. Alderman Cubitt moved,—"That the following sums be expended in white metalling the undermentioned roads, at the probable cost affixed to each:—West-street, £150; Denison-road, £150; Windsor-road, £300; Constitution-road, £132; Dulwich-street, £50; Frederick-street, £80; Charles-street, £70; Merton-street, £112; Malton-crescent, £250; Trafalgar-terrace, £130." The Barrabool cleared Port Phillip Heads at 5.15 p.m. on the 6th of March, passed Wilson's Promontory at 2.40 on the 7th, Gabo Island at 11 p.m., and entered Sydney Heads at 10.30 p.m. on the 8th. Experienced strong N.E. wind, attended with a very heavy head sea to Gabo Island; thence to arrival light north wind and fine weather.

THE R.M.S. SHANNON.

The R.M.S. Shannon, which cleared Port Phillip Heads on the 8th, at 5 p.m., should be here early on Friday afternoon. We append a description of the vessel from the Argus:—"The Shannon is quite a new vessel, and on her maiden voyage, and is one of the most recent additions to the already powerful and extensive fleet of the P. and O. Company. In the disposition of her passenger accommodation the Shannon is very much after the style of the Rome and Carthage, the saloon being amidships, and the full width of the vessel, while the second saloon is in the poop aft. There is also a hurricane-deck for promenading, and underneath on each side are very spacious alley-ways open to seaward their full length. The Shannon was built by Messrs. Harland and Wolf, of Belfast, whose work is in high repute amongst shipowners, and whose fame has been well established in connexion with the mammoth steamships of the Atlantic White Star line. Steel has been employed in the construction of the hull, and also of the boilers, and the crank-shaft and other of the principal working parts of the engines are also of steel. The dimensions of the Shannon are as follow:—Length, 400ft.; beam, 42½ft.; depth of hold, 32ft. 7in. This gives her gross measurement as 4189 tons, and the net register as 2102 tons. The saloon accommodation is berthed for 120 passengers, and there are berths for 42 passengers in the second cabin. The dining or main saloon is forward of the engine-room, and is approached from the hurricane and upper decks by a spacious companion-way. The panelling of this and the music saloon are of white marble, richly and ornately inlaid with gold flowering and scroll work, and the effect is very lightsome and pleasant, as well as being suggestive of coolness in tropical latitudes. In this respect the style is in marked and by no means unfavourable contrast with the heavier and somewhat sombre decorations in dark walnut of the Rome and Carthage. The appointments and appliances for the comfort of passengers are simply luxurious. There are marble baths, and electric bells, and all the adjuncts of a first-class hotel. The engines of the Shannon are on the compound principle, direct acting, and surface-condensing. There are two pairs of tandem engines of 750 horse-power nominal, but capable of working up to 4000 horse power effective. The cylinders, four in number, are 38 inches and 76 inches respectively, and the stroke is 5 feet. There are four double-ended boilers and one single, the shells of which are steel, and the pressure during the voyage has been equal to 90lb. to the square inch. The latest patents and improvements are to be found in the engine-room, and there are also powerful steam-winches for cargo haulage. The command of the Shannon has been given to Captain J. S. Murray, who has seen lengthened service in the company's fleet, and with him as deck officers are Messrs. C. R. Edwards (chief), J. W. Bennett (second), T. Betham (third), Toynbee (fourth), and Eden (fifth). The chief engineer is Mr. G. Peebles, son of the late Mr. D. Peebles, who was chief engineer in the company's steamers for years, and who was last here in the Pera. The duties of purser devolve upon Mr. T. W. Miller, who was last here in the Tanjore. Dr. Blake Marsh is medical officer, and the chief steward is Mr. R. South wood, late of the Assam. Brindisi and other of the company's steamers. The administration of the ship is in very capable hands, and testimony to this effect was given by the passengers. They expressed themselves as thoroughly pleased with the Shannon and her officers, and also with the very good time they had on board during the passage. The engines worked smoothly, and the vessel went steadily, and no hitch occurred to mar the general harmony. There were two fancy dress balls, and histrionic and musical entertainments and other diversions during the way out. The Shannon left London on January 20, and Suez on the 3rd ultimo, Galle being reached on the 4th ultimo. With the exception of strong head winds encountered for two days, the voyage to Galle was marked by favourable weather. After taking on board mails, passengers, and cargo, the Shannon left Galle at 1 p.m. on the 16th ultimo, and fell in with strong trades and a high sea across the Indian Ocean. King George's Sound was reached half an hour after noon on the 28th ultimo, and at 6 p.m. same date the Shannon left for Adelaide, where she arrived at 5 p.m. on the 4th instant. From Albany to Adelaide the winds were south-easterly, and the weather was fine. After landing mails, passengers, and cargo for South Australia, the Shannon left Glenelg at half-past 2 p.m. same date, and passed Cape Otway at 10 minutes past 11 p.m. on Sunday, the Heads being entered at a quarter-past 5 a.m. yesterday. South-easterly winds were met with on the run round from Adelaide."

Band and Albion Consols had buyer, ex. div., at 6, seller at 6¼; N. S. W. Funded Stock, buyer 100; and debentures, 20 years', at 116½.

The Bank of New Zealand received by the s.s. Wakatipu, from New Zealand, 6300oz. of gold, being the produce of the West Coast Gold-fields; and a few days ago the s.s. Arawatta, from Auckland, brought 2515oz. for the same institution, being the produce of the Thames Gold-fields: total value, £35,000.

In the Import markets again to-day there was very little doing. The auction grocery business contained no noteworthy feature, as the sales were of an unimportant character and in no way indicative of values. The few hundred pockets of sugars on the catalogue were withdrawn, as the competition did not reach the reserves. In flour a brisk trade continues to be done at late rates. The tone of the southern markets is still decidedly firm. A private telegram from South Australia to-day says that the millers are full of orders for March, and country flour, for delivery in April, was not obtainable under £12. There is very little wheat in this market, and quotations are almost nominal. About 50 tons of bran were placed at 18d., and pollard is rather slow of sale at 17d. to 18d. The market for oats is firm. From advices received from New Zealand we learn that oats were firmly held, and prices, to a great extent, were nominal. There were many anxious buyers, and a high range of prices was confidently anticipated. In fish several hundreds of cases of tinned salmon were placed at 8s. 3d. Ling, to arrive, had attention at 6¾d.; salt herrings were done at 32s. and 17s. half-barrels and quarters. Further sales of coarse salt are reported at 70s. In liquors, a continued brisk business is reported in bottled ale and stout; and Boar's Head ale and stout, Bass' by Hall, to arrive, were placed, and Burke's ale on the spot also had attention, at agents' quotations. Rum is firm, and in the face of a strong English market seems likely to maintain its value; a shipment of Preston's, to arrive, was done at 4s.; Lowndes' on the spot had attention at 4s. 4½d to 4s. 6d. For geneva 3½ to 3·28s., 12s. to 12s. 6d. was paid. A good business is being done in whisky; Walker's for forward delivery selling freely at 18s. 6d.; Royal Blend, moving at 17s. 6d. In metals, No. 10 Ryland's fencing wire was placed at £14 15s. in bond, for export, and business was done in No. 8 Whitecross at £15. Davies' Crown galvanized iron sold at £24 5s. Holders of woolpacks are little disposed to meet inquiry except at an advance, as Calcutta news to the 7th February is to the effect that large contracts had been made at successively higher rates, and the mills were asking 1.4r., which seemed to be the established price of the season. Sales for Australia had been made for February, March, and April, to the extent of at least 5000 bales. The timber market continues firm, and at Messrs. Fraser and Co.'s auction room to-day, there was a fair attendance, and good competition for several shipments offered, which realized the following prices:—Scotch flooring and lining boards, 6 x 7½, T. and G. flooring, 20s. 9d.; 6 x ⅞, 18s. 6d. to 18s. 9d. A shipment of redwood ; ne brought from 10s. 3d. to 11s. 6d. Doors, 2.6 x 6.6 x 1¼, 9s. 9d. There was a moderate supply of forage at the Darling Harbour produce sales this morning, for which the following prices were obtained:—For wheaten and oaten hay, in bales, from 5s. 6d. to 6s. 1d. per cwt.; in bundles, 5s. 11d. to 6s. 7d.; in truss, 5s. 9d. to 6s.; lucerne hay, in truss, with sheaves, 4s. 9d. to 5s. 5d. per cwt.; straw in bales, 3s. 1d. to 3s. 6d.; in bundles, 3s. 9d. to 4s. 1d.; mixed chaff, in bales, 4s. to 4s. 6d.; wheaten hay, in bundles, 5s. to 5s. 1d.; in truss, 3s. 1d.; wheaten husks, in bales, 2s. 7d. to 2s. 8d. per cwt.; oaten hay and rye straw, in bundles, 5s. 5d. per cwt.; pumpkins, from 1s. 7d. to 7s. per dozen. On the wharfs prime green lucerne hay is selling at £1 to £1 10s. per ton, inferior quality £3 to £4 per ton; maize, 5s. per bushel; oats, 3s. to 3s. 3d. per bushel; bran, 1s. 6d. per bushel; pollard, 1s. 7d. per bushel; Victorian onions, £2 15s. to £3; chaff, £5 15s. to £6 per ton; Warrnambool potatoes, £3 to £3 5s. per ton; butter, in kegs, 1s. to 1s. 3d. per lb.; eggs, 1s. 6d. per dozen; bacon, 8d. to 9d. per lb.; lard, 7d. to 8d. per lb.; cheese, 4d. to 8d.; ham, 1s. per lb.; fowls, 2s. 6d. to 3s. per pair; ducks, 3s. to 3s 6d per pair; geese, 5s. to 6s. per pair; turkeys, 6s. to 12s. per pair; millet brooms, 7s. 6d. to 10s. per dozen. On the H. R. N. S. N. Co.'s Wharf, several lots of lucerne hay were sold at prices ranging from 53s. to 90s. per ton.

Messrs. Mort and Co. offered 1050 bales wool at auction to-day. For good parcels of both washed and greasy there was a brisk demand, but faulty lots were more difficult to quit. 500 bales were sold at up to 18d. per lb. for fleece, 20d. for scoured, and 10½d. for greasy. The principal lots were:—FAHEY over Burrowa, 20 bales fleece at 17d.; HE, 30 at 15½d.; PP, 13 at 16½d.; T over Reid's Flat, 12 at 16½d.; DMK over New England, 9 at 17¼d.; DF over New England, 18 at 18d. Greasy: JH over B, 11 at 10d.; C in diamond over Clerkness, 21 at 10d.; SS over B, 12 at 9½d.; Melrose Plains, 32 at 10½d.; GPS, 17 at 9½d. Scoured: MG over Brookstead, 7 at 20d., 2 at 18½d.; A&RA over Narandera, at 17d.

The English mails to the 27th January per the P. and O. Co.'s steamship Shannon were delivered in Sydney this morning. The London money market at that date was in the critical state advised by telegraph. Money was in good supply, and there was a scarcity of bills. In the open market three months' bills of the best quality were discounted at 4½ to 4¾ per cent., while the charge for short loans was 3½ per cent. Money was in large request for short loans in connection with the business of the Stock Exchange, but there was no disposition on the part of bankers to press with undue severity upon those in need of their help. The closing quotations for bank stocks were:—Australasia, 80-82; English, Scottish, and Australian Chartered, 24-25; New South Wales, 61-63; New Zealand, 24½, 25½; Oriental, 19, 20; Queensland National, 9¼, 9¾; Union of Australia, 62. The shipments to the colonies for the month had been £2,098,600, an amount less by £293,500 than in the previous month, but more than the total of corresponding months in previous years. The total shipments to Sydney reach £791,600, a decline of £15,200. The declared value of exports to Australasia for 1881 amounted to no less than £22,615,000, more than five and a half millions in excess of the value for the preceding year, which was £17,077,700, and more than double the amount for 1871, which was £10,706,700. For some years New South Wales has headed the list of colonies in the amount of its imports from the United Kingdom, and last year received £7,741,500 against £6,965,800 imported into Victoria; £1,166,500 into Queensland, £2,537,700 into South Australia, 251,890 into Tasmania, £147,700 into Western Australia, and £3,703,300 into New Zealand. The shipments to Sydney for the month included: Drapery, £290,200; dressed and wrought leather and saddlery, £31,320; rails and general machinery, £66,950; books, paper, and stationery, £25,897; gunpowder, 1483cwt.; cartridges and dynamite, £750; safety fuse, £1035; bar and rod iron, 945 tons; pig iron, 870 tons; galvanized iron, 1306 tons, sheet lead, 158 tons; tinplates, 3930 boxes; wire and wire rope, 1268 tons; linseed oil, 24,030 gallons; turpentine, 450 gallons; cement, 15,720 barrels; tobacco, 33,550lbs.; brandy in bulk, 7250 gallons; in case, 3750 gallons; rum, 39,330 gallons; geneva, 37,250 gallons; British spirits in bulk, 32,220 gallons—in case, 14,750 gallons; foreign spirits, 3770 gallons; red wine, 980 gallons; white wine, 7540 gallons; beer (bulk), 2005 barrels; glass, 1947 barrels; malt, 3412 quarters; hops, 201cwt.; preserved fish, £1350; salt fish, £660; sardines, £3400; assorted oilmen's stores, £13,400; vinegar, 10,290 gallons; white salt, 895 tons; rock salt, 412 tons; candles, 3020 cwt.; raisins, 1747 cwt.; currants, 838 cwt. The wool market showed no material change, and on the whole was rather quiet; the arrivals to date for February sales were rather short, amounting to 62,463 bales only, of which 27,521 were from the Cape, and 12,878 from New South Wales and Queensland. The Continental news was not encouraging, but as we knew by telegraph the sales have opened more briskly than was anticipated, the prospects at the close being scarcely so favourable as they had been. Respecting the produce market, Messrs. Goad, Rigg, and Co., under date 26th January, report that tallow continued firm, and at sales on the 27th 615 casks were sold out of a total of 1226. Good to fine mutton realized 44s. 6d. to 47s., and fair to fine beef 40s. to 42s. 6d. Stock in first hands, 1800 casks. Of hides the supplies until close had been small, and prices remained nominally unchanged; heavy, 5⅝d., 5½d. per lb., and light and cows 5¼d. to 5½d. per lb. For leather the demand has not been active, but values were about the same as on the 1st January. Prime and good tannages brought 11d. to 11½d. per lb., but for ordinary and medium qualities the quotations were 10½d. to 10¾d. per lb. Basils continued in good request, at fully late rates. 55,000 had been sold as follows:—Strained, best, 14¼d. to 15d. per lb.; second class, 13d. to 14½d. per lb.; greasy, 8½d. to 12½d. per lb.; New Zealand, best, 12½d. to 15¾d. per lb.; inferior and greasy, 8d. to 11d. per lb.; unstrained, 8d. to 10d. per lb. Opossum Skins: The supply continued very large, about 700,000 being catalogued for sale last week, of which 40,000 had been sold as follows:—1st, 6¼d., 8½d.; 2nd, 3d., 4½d.; 3rd, 1½d., 2d.; small, 2¼d. to 5d. each. Kangaroo skins continued very dull of sale. The New Zealand Loan and Mercantile Agency Company, Limited, reports that in preserved meats there was no marked feature to record. Quotations were without change, but the prices of boiled mutton in 6-lb. tins, for which there was comparatively little demand, had a downward tendency. The smaller sized tins had sold slowly, maintaining, however, recent current rates. Boiled beef was still firmly held, and only a moderate amount of business had been transacted. Quotations:—Boiled mutton: 2lb.-tins, 5¾d. to 5¼d. per lb.; 4lb.-tins, 5½d. to 5⅝d. per lb.; 6lb.-tins, 5½d. to 5⅝d. per lb. Boiled beef: 4½d. to 4¾d. per lb.; 4½d. to 4⅝d. per lb.; 4½d. to 4⅝d. per lb. Importations during the fortnight had been 2911 cases from Australia, and 4600 from New York. For sun-dried Sydney copra of good quality £15 was obtainable. Kiln-dried worth from £13 to £13 15s.

The Colombo Observer of the 6th February reports as follows of the coffee market:—

"Coffee: The heavy fall in the home coffee markets advised by telegraph, and advance in exchange, have caused a suspension of all business in our staple, for which it is impossible to give any current quotations. In the early part of the fortnight under review one or two transactions in high-grown plantation took place at 46rs. to 47rs., and in lower sorts at rates down to 35rs. f.o.b., but these figures are no longer quotable, whilst no offers can be obtained for estate parchment, even of good quality. We hear of nothing having been done in garden parchment, of which supplies are nearly exhausted. There has been very little native coffee on offer, and only a small business has passed at 21·50rs. for ordinary picking."

From Messrs. Peet and Co.'s Batavian Circular of 1st February we take the following:—

"The s.s. Annandale, an extra steamer of the Queensland Royal Mail line, arrived here on the 17th ultimo, and left again for Australia on 19th ultimo; and the Roma, outward steamer of the same line, arrived here on 29th ultimo from London, left the same evening. The homeward steamer Durham arrived here on 25th, and left on 29th ultimo for London; and the Compta, the next boat, is due here on 17th instant. The s.s. Nelson has sailed for Melbourne and Sydney with a cargo of sugar. The Elise is leaky at Sourabaya, and discharging for repairs. The Clare Babuyan still loading, also the Jamaica. The Brunette (560) has sailed, and the William Turner (431) and Hollander have both been taken up to load for Australia. The Guldax has been ordered to Europe instead of Australia. Coffee has utterly collapsed, and prices in Holland have fallen to the lowest since 1868, say 31½ cents per half kilo for ordinary green Java, and prospects seem as gloomy as it is possible that they can be. We have no transactions to note. The Java crop of 1882 will again be a large one, though not such a bumper as that of 1881 was. Coffee Padang: The next sale to be held at Padang at the end of March will likely not exceed 25,000 piculs. Sugar: There is still a good deal of sugar in course of shipment, our last crop proving to be the largest ever raised in Java, and it is thought that it may reach about 4,300,000 piculs, say about 270,000 tons. There is a good demand for the early deliveries of sugar from the coming crop at 15f. per picul for No. 14; but at this price many planters will not sell these early deliveries, say 5000 piculs, the first made at each mill, which is always the best sugar, and, coming in early, generally meets with a good exchange, and being shipped by steam to Europe, is actively sought after there for the purpose of pulling up the quality of the fag end of the beet sugars. Rice: A good large area of rice has this year been planted, and, although prices of rice still continue high, we look to see prices give way when the new rice begins to come in; large imports of rice, however, still continue from Saigon and Siam. Tjomas we quote at 240f.; Batavia, white, at 185f. to 190f. per koyang of 27 piculs. Saigon is selling at 142½f. Rattans are in good demand at 14f. to 15f. per picul. Black pepper in no demand whatever except for local consumption—we quote 23f. to 24f. per picul. White Pepper: None offering. Nutmegs: The market is quite bare; we quote 110's to the lb. nominally at 150f. per picul. Mace scarce; nominal value, 60f. to 70f. according to quality. Cloves: None in the market. Cassia procurable at Padang at 12½f. to 13½f., f.o.b. Freights: The season being over, rates are easing considerably, though vessels that have laid in to load at Padang to New York have still made good rates. Exchange ruled 12.0.5f. to 12f. for four months' sight, and 11.90f. and 11.95f. for six months' sight private bills on London."

The following are the Customs duties received to-day:—

Spirits, £2256 5s. 8d.; wine, still, £69 14s. 7d.; wine, sparkling, £27; ale, porter, and beer, in bottle, £11 9s. 6d.; tobacco and snuff, £94 6s.; cigars, £100 14s. 5d.; tea, £210 10s. 3d.; coffee and chicory, £2 16s.; sugar, refined, £2 13s. 4d.; ditto, unrefined, £20 12s. 8d.; molasses, £21 3s 4d.; opium, £93 12s. 6d.; rice, £19 11s. 4d; dried fruits, £217 12s. 6d.; hops, £2 13s.; specific duty, £1170 6s. 1d.; harbour and light dues, £2 14s. 8d.; Chinese restriction, £20; total, £4343 15s. 10d.

D. WILSON, Esq. (of Mason Brothers)
P. HAYES, Esq. (of North Shore).
BROKERS:
MELHADO and CURTIS.
The Company is being formed to purchase the Brick Works of Mr. P. Hayes, at North Shore, on the following terms:—£6500 cash and £5000 worth of shares. An inventory of the plant, &c., is given below.
The property is well known, and the superior quality of the bricks admitted, as they command 5s per thousand more in the market than others. The demand for the bricks—owing to the excellent quality of them—is greater than can be supplied; but by the aid of the increased capital it is expected that the present output of 70,000 per week can be easily doubled.
The distance to Sydney is very close, and with the aid of a STEAM PUNT the profits can be largely increased.
The boring with the Diamond Drill on this property has proved the very great value of the land for making Bricks and Drain Pipes, as a second and extensive bed of shale (a sample of which is at the brokers' office) is proved to exist. As to the quality of the bricks, we refer to the large stores lately built at the Grafton Wharf for Messrs. John Frazer and Co., and the stores near the Circular Quay, built for H. Austin, Esq.; also, the Model Lodging-house, and various other buildings.
The present Directors will retain office until the first annual meeting.
We place this property before the public with very great confidence, as it is a good sound business now, one that can be largely increased, and the profits are very large.
Applications for Shares will be received by us, and allotted as applied for, and list closed immediately the required number are taken.

Lectures	1

The Sydney Morning Herald.

THURSDAY, MARCH 9, 1882.

The lectures which Mr. Ranken is giving at Balmain on the great question of the land will have the good effect of setting people thinking on one of the most important social topics, and a lecturer can do nothing better. The occupation of land has always been a subject keenly discussed, and yet never settled to the satisfaction of the whole community. Ancient history is full of the political troubles occasioned by discontent in the distribution of land, and modern history can give its contributions of the same kind. We occasionally hear in Australia the remark that the best thing to be done by our Government is to get rid of the land altogether, and pass it as quickly as possible into private ownership. It is, however, a great delusion to suppose that if that were done we should hear the last of the land question. We have only to look to Ireland to see that the private ownership of land may be the cause of social and political revolutions, while in the Australian colony of Victoria we see a democratic leader sustaining himself in office for three years mainly in virtue of his promise to burst up big estates, and that at a time when more than half the territory is still the property of Government. This phase of the question has been rapidly succeeded by another, for the democratic party seems now inclined to take up with the cry that the Government should not alienate the land at all.

This last theory, however, though a new one, is also an old one. It is the old idea of a tribal or communistic title—vesting the land in the community, and giving the individual only temporary rights. No such theory presided over the dawn of Australian colonization. The wisdom of private property in land was taken for granted, and the only question was how to regulate the acquisition of that property. Mr. Ranken passes in review the various systems that were adopted from the founding of the colony onwards, and criticises them in the light of present experience. One inference that is naturally suggested by such a review is that there is no system that is absolutely the best, and that very much depends on circumstances. What is good for one stage of colonization may not be good for another, and it may also be true that what is done to meet the wants of one epoch may create difficulties and evils for a succeeding epoch.

In the beginning of our colonization land was a drug in the market, and was practically worthless. Fixed settlement, of course, begun very soon to give to town lands, and the more productive portions of country and suburban lands, some unearned increment of value. But still when population was small, and acres were innumerable, the profit to be derived from land was not appreciably more than the profit from the capital and labour sunk in it. Land represented little else than the opportunity for labour and capital to expend themselves profitably. Under such circumstances to give land away was simply to give away an opportunity, and not to give away what was intrinsically very valuable. The objection to free grants was not so much to the principle involved in making a gift of land as in the excessive quantity given, and the absence of improvement that too often accompanied the grants. There are many signs that in the early days the Government desired improvement, and bribed and tempted the occupiers to improve, and exacted promises. But the just expectations of the donors were, as a rule, not fulfilled, and land was given away without the prescribed or understood conditions being rigidly fulfilled. Though we may regret this, we cannot afford to be very severe on the administration in those days. We have had plenty of opportunity in our own time of seeing how difficult it is to enforce conditions of improvement—how systematically they are evaded, how at the best the performance is stinted, and how it often ceases altogether as soon as the probation is over, and the title has been secured. In earlier days, when Government was less rigid, and when there was no public opinion to sustain it, it is not wonderful that the free grant system largely failed in developing an agricultural improvement which did not promise to be its own reward.

The introduction of sheep-farming gave a new tone to the estimation of the value of land. Instead of being a little settlement on the coast the colony spread out in all directions. Pastoral occupation requires large areas, and the worth of the land in the interior was simply the worth of its grass. That state of things necessarily lasted till the best of the pastures were taken up, when the most productive runs, and those nearest to market, began to acquire an increment of value.

The discovery of gold brought another great change. It suddenly increased the population, it augmented the wealth of the colony, it created inland towns and inland markets, and made pastoral occupation much more profitable than before. Accompanied as this was by a growing demand for wool, and by occasionally very high prices for it, an increasing estimate was put upon the value of pastoral land, till in our own day we see squatters greedily buying at a pound an acre land which they or their predecessors thirty years ago declared not to be worth a farthing an acre.

It is obvious that during these successive stages the land has come to be looked at from different points of view as respects its value to the Government in a fiscal sense, and the successive increases in the upset price from a free grant with conditions to five shillings an acre, and from five to twelve shillings, and again from twelve to twenty, and in our own colony for a short time from twenty to twenty-five, have roughly, though by fits and starts, represented the natural advance in value. It may therefore be easily understood that while free grants might have been suitable when the great thing wanted was to tempt people to go on to the soil at all, they would be quite unsuitable when people were prepared to bid eagerly against each other.

While such changes were in progress it was obviously desirable that they should be closely watched, and that the administration of the land should be adapted to them; and we cannot honestly say that in this respect we have been fortunate. Mr. RANKEN not unfairly intimates that some of the blundering was due to the fact that the early colony was a good deal governed from England, where its state was little understood, and that English statesmen were themselves governed by English notions of landlordism and agriculture, as well as English theories of the form that colonization ought to take, or ought to be made to take. In dealing with this part of the question, however, he is somewhat unfair to the WAKEFIELD system. No doubt the system was based on a theory, and the author was not at first a practical colonist, nor was it wholly suited to the conditions of a pastoral colony, where the squatters bitterly resented the increase in the price of land. But it did suit the condition of South Australia after that colony had emerged from its first difficulties, and by its steady importation of labour, it laid the basis of that prosperous agricultural settlement for which that colony has been so much distinguished. Nor was it by any means such a failure in New Zealand as some other systems that have since been substituted for it. But the success of this system, as of many another, depended a good deal upon its administration. What broke down the auction system in this colony was the inability or unwillingness of the Government of the day to keep a supply of the best land always in the market. That led, by an inevitable reaction, to the cry that every man should be allowed to help himself. The law that sanctioned this was practically a surrender of the functions of the Government, and ever since then Government has been making desperate efforts to regain its authority.

The Government valuator's decisions in the matter of the land claims at Darling Harbour are instructive from several points of view. As our readers will remember, the amount of the claims was £761,000; the amount of the Government valuation is £215,000, or considerably less than one-third of the sum claimed. A few of the reductions will certainly strike the public as somewhat startling. In one instance the amount of the claim was £70,000, but the valuation is only £5000. While this may be the most remarkable case on the list, there are others which will furnish plenty of food for reflection. Thus in one instance the claim was £55,000 and the valuation £3000; in another the former was £37,000 and the latter £2000, while in another the former was £45,000 and the latter £5000. One claim it seems was ignored altogether. Taken as a whole, as we have said, the claimants asked for more than three times as much as the Government valuator thought they ought to get. That the owners of the land should put in a claim for more than they were likely to receive, and perhaps for more than they themselves expected to receive, was natural enough. People sometimes adopt this policy even when dealing with private individuals; it is not surprising, therefore, that they adopt it in dealing with the Government. The estimate of the man who wants to buy is very seldom that of the man who wants to sell. But it is safe to say that in regard to things that can be weighed or measured the two estimates are seldom so widely different as they have turned out at Darling Harbour. Citizens with no special information or aptitude in the matter of buying and selling land are able to form an approximate idea of what land is worth in any given suburb of Sydney. If they are unable to hit the mark exactly, they can come somewhere near it. The presumption is, that before the Government valuator addressed himself to the Darling Harbour claims, those claims were dealt with by experts who would be expected to make all inquiries and give, if not an impartial, at least a fair view of what ought to be asked, and of what might be expected. If this was done the result shows either that there is no rule by which the value of the land around Darling Harbour can be determined, or that the rule is far too difficult for even experts to understand. In one instance the amount of the claim is more than fifteen times the amount of the valuation, and in another it is more than eighteen times that amount. It must be clear that where there are discrepancies like these the claimants' valuators have nominated a great deal too much, or the Government valuator has named a great deal too little. On which side the error has been made the public may have an opportunity of judging after the affair has reached another stage. When the buyer and the seller cannot agree the usual course is to submit their differences to a higher tribunal. As the law now stands this course can be adopted either by the claimants or by the Government. With the work of the public valuator the Government will probably be satisfied, but unless they are conscious of having asked far too much some of the claimants will hardly be satisfied. There are few men who would quietly submit to have their land taken from them, and then to receive for it about a fifteenth or twentieth part of what they honestly believed it to be worth. The concern of the public in such matters is to see that justice is done. While on the one hand no one likes to have the Government fleeced, on the other it is to the interest of the community generally that the honest claims of private individuals should be fully met. Those who read the return we published the day before yesterday will rejoice that the law provides a tribunal to which such differences as it discloses may be referred, and by which they may be finally settled. It will certainly be interesting to know whether in the opinion of a competent jury the Darling Harbour claims are much above the mark, or the Government valuations much below it.

Mr. HAYTER has compiled from the census returns of Victoria an interesting digest of the birthplaces of the present population. A table supplying similar information for this colony appears in another column. Mr. HAYTER'S digest is not absolutely correct, because he only gets returns for 857,655 out of 862,346 entries in the census, but this is near enough for all practical purposes. The most interesting fact that comes out is that very nearly half a million of the present population are Victorian born, that is to say considerably more than half the total population. The native element is therefore preponderant, not yet socially or politically, because so many of the natives are under age; but still there are half a million people who claim Victoria as the land of their birth, and all of whom will be of age within the next 20 years if they live, and during that 20 years there will be a fresh supply of the native population. No immigration therefore can for the future override the native element. When the goldfields were first discovered, there was such a rush to Victoria, not only from all the other colonies, but from the mother country, that the Victorians proper found themselves completely outnumbered. That state of things has now passed away never to return, and in every year henceforth the predominance of the native element in the population will become more and more marked.

As Victoria is one of the daughters of New South Wales, many of our readers will ask how many of its present inhabitants were born within the territory which now belongs to the older colony, and they will be surprised to find that they do not number more than 9926. Victoria, therefore, whatever its attractions, does not seem to have drawn any large number of our native youth, who have found scope for their energies either in our own colony, or further north. Indeed, the small colony of Tasmania has contributed more to the population of Victoria than New South Wales has done. For many years Tasmania was a dull place for young men, and those who wanted to push their fortunes crossed the Straits to seek a wider sphere of action in the more northerly colony. Even South Australia has sent more of its children to Victoria than we have done, the number being 9928, a result also, we presume, due to the occasional pressure of dull times, which has sent unsettled and roving colonists across the border. Even New Zealand has furnished 2885 colonists to Victoria, Queensland has sent 1120, and Western Australia 404; while in addition to these there are 3727 returned as having come from Australia without its being specified from which colony. Altogether Victoria has drawn from the six neighbouring colonies 30,039 people, which, out of a total of 862,346 given by the census, is a very small proportion. If we could set against these figures the number of its native-born population that Victoria has dispersed to the other colonies, we should probably find that its losses exceeded its gains. When the census returns of all the colonies are completed and classified, we may be able to trace this calculation. We shall probably very soon be in a position to state the extent of our own obligations to Victoria.

The greater proportion of the foreign-born population, of course, comes from the mother country. The greatest number have come from England, and they amount to very nearly 143,000. Ireland comes next with 86,733; then Scotland with 48,153, and then Wales with 4547. Germany has sent very nearly twice as many as Wales, namely 8571, while China has contributed 31,800. Supposing the returns to be correct, one curious fact denoted is that there are in the colony at the present time fewer people of all classes from the United Kingdom than there were ten years ago—that is, fewer Englishmen, fewer Scotchmen, fewer Irishmen, and fewer Welshmen. Have these people died, or have they emigrated? There has been no assisted immigration to keep up their numbers, but for all that the diminution in those numbers is remarkable. The purely foreign element in Victoria is not very large, inasmuch as, inclusive of unspecified names, there are less than 29,000 people who do not own a British allegiance.

The business people of Sydney have undergone much inconvenience recently by reason of unnecessary delay in bringing on the English mails from Melbourne. On February 6th the English mail via Suez arrived at Port Phillip at 5 a.m., the overland mail for Sydney leaving at 6 a.m. It would seem that no extraordinary efforts were made to tranship the mails, and that the train had to depart without them. Further, although they were in the afternoon sent through by train to Wodonga, and arrived at that terminus of the Victorian line at about 11 the same night, there were no means on this side of bringing them to their destination. They were permitted to remain at Albury or Wodonga until picked up by the through train upon the following day. Thus 50 hours elapsed from the delivery of the mails in Melbourne until their arrival in Sydney. An almost similar delay has followed the arrival of the last boat. The mails too late for the morning were sent on by the afternoon train, and were again permitted to remain at the terminus until picked up on the following day. The people of Melbourne had their letters and papers fifty hours in advance of Sydney in the first instance, and considerably over forty in the second. Now surely we need not have used superhuman efforts in the construction of railway lines if they can afford us no better results than these. Fast steamers have made the passage between the two cities in considerably less than fifty hours, but trains with vice-regal or ministerial personages on board have run through in less than twenty. Why then cannot the mails be pushed through in the same short time? Is it that comparative privacy, or five or six hours of time gained to a Minister are of more importance than twenty hours' possession of Eastern and European information to the whole population? We are willing to admit that ministerial time is often precious, that Minister's visits are not always meaningless as courtiers' compliments; but it must be allowed that both kick the beam as feather weights when the other case is flung into the scale. People were led to expect constant improvement in the bringing over of the mails as the railway systems of the colonies approached each other, but latterly, it would seem that we have gone backward rather than advanced. The evil is vexatious and pressing, while the remedy is plain. The signal service upon the coast will denote with sufficient accuracy the arrival of the mail steamer, and if it does not agree with the departure of the mail train let special trains be provided. There can be no formidable difficulties in the way of such a course, and the possible gain is so great that the cost need not be seriously considered.

In common with some of the other colonies, New South Wales is evidently beginning to appreciate the advantages of the boarding-out system. The boarding-out officer's report, published in yesterday's issue, informs us that upwards of 80 homes are now available, but that, owing to the difficulty of obtaining children, only one had been boarded out during the past month, as against 23 in January. The board have therefore been induced to obtain the sanction of the MINISTER FOR PUBLIC INSTRUCTION to operate upon the Government institutions, and in this way the numerous applications for children for whom suitable homes are offered will be more readily complied with. "With a few exceptions," we are told, "the homes that had been offered were all that could be desired." Upon that most important point—the suitableness of the homes—will depend to a very great extent the success of the system. With such a large number of people offering to take children, a reasonably high standard of fitness should be insisted on, and the utmost care should be taken to see that the character of the homes to which the children have been transferred continues to be above suspicion. There is reason to believe that every precaution has been exercised hitherto, but these are matters which are worthy of the continued attention of the members of the board, as well as of that of the officials. As a larger number of children get established in homes, responsibilities will increase, and it is to be hoped, therefore, that the efforts to find children for applicants will not lessen the interest which has been shown in those already boarded out. The report states that "the officer, after eight months' experience of the operation of the system in this colony, is confirmed in his opinion that it is on the whole the best method yet devised for dealing with the children of the State—for teaching them to make their own way in the world, and for discovering their connection and associations with pauperdom." This experience is in agreement with that of other communities where the system has been longer in operation. It has been proved that the judicious distribution of destitute children among private families is productive of better results than the massing them together in large schools or reformatories, which are occasionally nurseries for hardening the tender, and developing the grosser features in a child's nature. But it is only when the system is honestly and vigilantly carried out that its value is felt. While the majority of the children boarded-out are very young they give comparatively little trouble, but as they advance in years, learn their real condition, and, perhaps, develop intractability, the difficulty of dealing with them becomes great. As this difficulty is sure to arise in future, the greater care should be taken in the present to select families who will provide genuine homes for the waifs and strays of the colony.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE debate in the House of Commons on Mr. Gladstone's motion, condemnatory of the appointment by the House of Lords of a committee to inquire into the working of the Irish Land Act, still drags along. Meanwhile, the committee is pursuing its labours. Regarding the condition of Ireland, several of the Assize Judges, who are now on circuit, have expressed regret at crime being still so rife in the country, as exhibited by the gaol calendars. The Indian Budget shows a deficit of £4,000,000. The import duties upon cotton goods are to be abolished, and those upon salt lowered. Next year's revenue, however, is expected to yield a small surplus. The French have made another enemy in Northern Africa. Their relations with Morocco have been strained for some time, and have now ended in open hostilities. An indecisive battle has been fought between the troops of the two countries, with losses on both sides. It will be of some interest to the Australian youth to learn that one of the two Eton students who seized and expended their loyal indignation upon M'Lean, who attempted the Queen's life, is an Australian lad, the son of Sir Samuel Wilson.

WHATEVER opinions the House of Commons may entertain, or whatever course it may adopt in regard to the admission of Atheists, Lord Redesdale is determined, if he can help it, to have none of them in either House. He has introduced a bill, which, after discussion, was read a first time, requiring that all members of Parliament shall, on taking the oath of allegiance, declare their belief in God. The measure can hardly be intended to ensure the non-admission of Mr. Bradlaugh to the House of Commons, for he is still what Mr. Gladstone once described him as, "an extraneous person," the highest court of judicature having given its verdict that he can neither take the oath nor affirm. Possibly, Lord Redesdale fears the Lower House may relax its rules by legislative enactment, and courts an anticipatory expression of opinion from the Peers as to the impolicy of any such amendment of the law. His Lordship has always—to quote from an authority—taken a deep interest in religious questions. As a member of the Royal Commission on the law of divorce he found himself unable to sign the report, having come to the conclusion that divorces a vinculo matrimonii are not allowed by the Divine law under any circumstances. He has published several works dealing with religious questions, and is a man who is likely to hold extreme views on such subjects as the admission of Atheists to seats in Parliament.

THE English mails brought by the R.M.S. Shannon reached Sydney, overland from Melbourne, at an early hour yesterday morning. In another page will be found a more than usually interesting letter on English and foreign affairs from our London correspondent, besides a large quantity of extract matter. Up to the time of our going to press, no intimation had been received as to the arrival of the P.M.S. City of New York at Auckland with the mails via San Francisco. She was due at Auckland on Monday afternoon.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR yesterday received the following telegram from the Secretary of State for the Colonies:—"London, March 6th.—Your message laid before the Queen. Her Majesty thanks the Government and colonists of New South Wales for their expression of loyalty and of gratitude at her preservation. (Signed) KIMBERLEY." The R. W. District Grand Master, Brother John Williams, English Constitution, Grand Lodge, has received the following cablegram from H. R. H. the Prince of Wales, Most Worshipful Grand Master of English Masonry, in reply to a message forwarded from Sydney expressing the congratulations of the Masonic body, R. C., upon her Majesty's providential escape:—"London.—I thank you and the brethren for your congratulations on the safety of the Queen. PRINCE OF WALES, Grand Master." The following message has been cabled by the Mayor of Newtown to the Secretary of State for the Colonies:—"Newtown Borough Council desire convey Queen heartfelt congratulations happily escaped attempted assassination."

SIR JOHN ROBERTSON (Colonial Secretary), the Hon. R. Wisdom (Attorney-General), the Hon. F. B. Suttor (Minister for Public Instruction), and the Hon. James Watson (Colonial Treasurer) paid an official visit yesterday afternoon to the German war ship Carola. The visitors were received by Captain Karcher, and on their leaving the vessel a salute was fired.

AT the invitation of the Ministry, a number of visitors to the colony will make a trip over the Blue Mountains to-morrow. A special train will leave Redfern station at 8.20 a.m. Luncheon will be served at Lithgow, and the train will return to Sydney about 6.30 p.m. The party will comprise Sir John Robertson, Hon. Jas. Watson, Captain Karcher and the officers of the German warship Carola, Dr. Krauel (German Consul-General for Australia), Mr. Carl Sahl (German Consul for Sydney), the Mayor of Sydney (Alderman Harris), the Hons. J. MacBain, D. Gillies, and W. Wilson (members of the Victorian Parliament), and a few other visitors from Victoria.

IS the Telegraph Department to be congratulated on the enormous increase of its business and, what must follow upon it, its enormous increase of revenue? Perhaps it would be more correct to call it the apparent increase. We stated in a paragraph yesterday, from information officially supplied, that "it is only the necessity for getting commercial messages through that has necessitated the limitation of press messages;" that "the Department is always ready to pass a press message through if the line happens to be clear." Another statement was to the effect that 1000 words an hour could be got through. Our special reporters attending the Kiama Agricultural Show lodged a lengthy message at the Kiama office yesterday afternoon. 500 words of this message were despatched by the Telegraph Department before 6 o'clock. At that hour the operators, in obedience to the new rule promulgated by Mr. S. C. Brown, Postmaster-General, did not transmit any more of the message until after the prescribed hour, viz., 10 o'clock at night. When that hour had passed we received the remainder of the message. According to the official information we published yesterday the presumption would be that "commercial messages," and not the new rule, engaged the lines for the intervening four hours. If there is really so much "commercial" business between the metropolis and Kiama as this view of the case would indicate, the necessity for a second wire is demonstrated, and as we are told the Department obtains from Parliament more money than is required, the surplus might be profitably employed in laying another wire. But something else is also demonstrated, which is scarcely explained even by such an abnormal condition of things in the neighbourhood of the Blowhole as an agricultural show occasions, and that is, the extent to which the telegraph would be made use of—not alone in the daytime, but between 6 and 10 o'clock at night, if the opportunity for using it is presented.

THE official opening of the tramway to Camden will take place to-morrow, when there will be present the Hon. J. Lackey (Minister for Public Works), Mr. C. A. Goodchap (Commissioner for Railways), Mr. Cowdery (Engineer for Existing Lines), and other visitors from the city. The line is 7½ miles in length, commencing at a point on the Great Southern Railway about 25 chains from the Campbelltown station, and terminating at the township of Camden. The line follows the road over the greater part of the distance, but in several places deviations have been made, and some rather heavy cuttings have had to be made. The rails used are the ordinary T rails, and are similar to those employed for the city tramways, with the exception that there is no guard on the rail. Motors will be used for traction, and the cars will be the same as those on the city lines, with the addition of a parcel compartment. It is probable that trucks will also be run on the line, so that it will be virtually a light branch railway rather than a tramway.

A TABULATED statement, which we publish elsewhere, has been prepared by Mr. Byron, census enumerator, showing the birth places of the people of this colony. The return gives the number of persons, males and females, of each nationality returned at the censuses of 1861, 1871, and 1881, with a quantity of other data of great interest in statistical science. The total population of New South Wales in 1881 was 751,468, of whom 340,319 are females. Of the total population, 465,559 were New South Wales born, while 107,574 returned England as their birthplace. From the neighbouring colonies were—Victoria, 25,006; Queensland, 5193; South Australia, 3260; Western Australia, 278; Tasmania, 4054; New Zealand, 2913; Fiji, 194; Australia undefined, 3510; and Aborigines, 1643. Other British nationalities are represented as follows:—Scotland, 25,079; Ireland, 69,192; Wales, 3100; other British possessions, 3567. The Chinese muster 10,205, an increase of about 3000 on the census of 1871. Other foreigners, of whom the Germans preponderate, make a total of about 21,000.

IN the Banco Court yesterday, Mr. Justice Faucett summed up to the jury in Campbell v. Southwell. The jury found for the plaintiff, with damages £50. This action was brought for an assault committed by the defendant, a selector, on the plaintiff (Mr. Frederick Campbell), then managing a station belonging to his father, the Hon. Charles Campbell, and was done in asserting and opening a right-of-way which Southwell and others claimed across the run. Sir George Innes then took his seat in Court, and Kirwin v. Pearson, an action substantially for breach of a contract to sell sheep, was part heard. In the Jury Court, Mr. Justice Windeyer summed up in Cohn v. Victoria Insurance Company, an action on a policy of insurance. The verdict was for the defendants. The action Wilson and wife v. Glenman, and Wilson v. Glenman, for false imprisonment, were then part heard.

THE medical superintendent of the Coast Hospital and Sanatorium reports that the Brearley family continue to make satisfactory progress. All others in hospital and Sanatorium are in good health.

A CONSIDERABLE amount of interest was shown yesterday in the election of four directors for the Sydney Hospital, in the room of Messrs. C. J. Roberts, R. Fowler, H. E. A. Allen, and E. Hordern (resigned), who retired in accordance with the provisions of the new Hospital Act. There were ten candidates, and the ballot resulted in the election of Messrs. W. G. Murray, John Starkey, C. J. Roberts, and Robert Fowler, in the order named.

THE one-hundredth quarterly meeting of the Municipal Council of Sydney is to be held at noon to-day. There is a long business paper for consideration.

THE monthly meeting of the committee of the National Shipwreck Relief Society of New South Wales was held on Thursday afternoon, 2nd instant. There were present:—Mr. W. S. Buzacott (chairman), Captains Brown, Banks, Broomfield, Sullivan, and Messrs. Storey, Buckland, and Wilshire. After the minutes of the previous meeting had been confirmed and other business attended to, a letter from Captain Berry, late master of the barque Romeo was read, appealing to the society for help, he having on board at the time of the wreck of that vessel his wife and children, who were landed safely but quite destitute, having lost all clothing and effects. The committee, taking into consideration all the circumstances of this case, have procured for himself and family out of the society's funds a passage to England in the ship Soukar, and also allowed a sufficient sum of money to procure necessary requirements for the voyage. The collector reported that the receipts for the month, since last meeting, amounted to £73 5s. 8d.

AT the regular meeting of the Protestant Alliance Friendly Society of New South Wales, held on Tuesday evening, applications were considered for the office of doctor to the society. There were 13 candidates, and three ballots were taken. Each of these resulted in favour of Dr. Hurst, who was declared appointed, vice the late Dr. Alston.

AT the weekly meeting of the Pitt-street Literary Association yesterday evening a large number of the members were present to welcome the Rev. James Jefferis, president, on his return to the chair after an absence of more than 12 months. Mr. E. A. Jones, on behalf of the society, delivered an appropriate address, expressive of their pleasure at being again re-united with their chairman, and congratulations upon his recovered health. The rev. gentleman suitably responded and gave some interesting information relative to the working of similar institutions, and their tangible effect upon public thought in some of the leading English towns as observed by him during his recent visit. The debate of the evening—"Are colonial agents justified in entering into direct negotiations with foreign Powers?"—was then proceeded with. After discussion the debate was adjourned to Wednesday next.

A LECTURE on "Nineveh Unearthed," illustrated by diagrams, was delivered in S. Thomas' Schoolroom, Balmain West, on Tuesday evening, by the Rev. Joseph Barnier. There was a good attendance, and the chair was occupied by Mr. F. R. Robinson, J.P. The lecturer referred to the early work of Layard in prosecuting his discoveries in the mounds of ancient Nineveh, and the testimony which the recovered sculpture and records bore to the veracity of the Sacred Scriptures was forcibly pointed out. A few pieces of sacred music, effectively rendered by the choir of S. Thomas' Church, were interspersed with the lecture. A hearty vote of thanks to the lecturer was accorded, on the motion of the Rev. E. D. Madgwick, the incumbent of the church, seconded by Mr. J. C. Waterman, and a similar compliment was paid to the chairman and the choir. A pleasant and profitable evening's entertainment was brought to a close by singing the National Anthem, in gratitude for the preservation of her Majesty the Queen from the hands of an assassin.

THE diamond drill at work in the Randwick Asylum reserve is making excellent progress, the bore having at noon yesterday reached a depth of 380 feet. This is the drill which was recently at work at North Shore, and it is fitted up at Randwick more with the design to bore to a depth, and consequently is to be seen as it now works to much better advantage than was the case at the North Shore.

THE ladies of the Flower Mission, now that the various charitable or benevolent institutions are again open to them, are anxious to obtain more flowers for distribution to the sick and afflicted, and advertise their want in another column. Flowers are received at the Temperance Hall on Mondays, up to 2 p.m.

REFERRING to recent complaints as to the careless manner in which meteorological observations are taken in country places, a correspondent at East Maitland suggests that the telegraph masters in important centres should be paid, say, £12 a-year for their trouble, and those in the smaller towns a trifle less annually. This plan would, in his opinion, ensure greater correctness, as it would infuse a personal interest in the work, which is quite outside the routine duty of telegraph masters.

"JUSTICE" writes from Petersham, complaining of the alleged flagrant and systematic infringement of the Sunday closing law by a certain publican, and the utter listlessness of the local police in the matter. He points out the unfairness to law-abiding publicans of winking at such proceedings when the exercise of the most ordinary vigilance would suffice to procure a conviction, and also the anomaly of travelling as far as Cook's River to arrest a case of illegal bathing, whilst a public scandal is persistently perpetrated under their very noses.

THE Metropolitan Quarter Sessions were resumed at Darlinghurst yesterday. Several cases were postponed, in consequence of the absence of witnesses or other causes, until the following sessions. James Patterson, Philip Purcell, and Stewart Waite, charged with inflicting grevious bodily harm, were found not guilty. Frank Mareszen, found guilty of indecent assault on a child, was sentenced to two years' imprisonment. This concluded the business.

LARRIKINISM appears to be growing apace in the suburbs of the city, judging from a complaint we have received from Rushcutter Bay. Last Sunday afternoon about thirty boys were seen in Cascade-street, Paddington, engaged in pelting four Chinamen with stones, brickbats, and other missiles. Our informant questioned the unfortunate celestials, who replied that the larrikins make a practice of robbing and wantonly destroying their gardens, one instance being given in which they dragged up a quantity of melon vines, and trampled down growing vegetables, after stealing what they wanted. One of the offenders, a hulking youth of about 20, on being expostulated with, retorted in impudence, defiance, and blasphemy. The residents say that these outrageous proceedings are of common occurrence, but they hesitate to speak or complain for fear of retaliation in the form of garden-destroying. The police do not seem to be often in this neighbourhood, and it is high time the authorities took steps for the protection of the suburbs from such lawlessness.

THE overworked condition of many of the omnibus horses is the subject of a letter from "H. C.," who pleads that a more strict official supervision should be exercised over the unfortunate, strained, and beaten animals used in the conveyance of the public.

THE number of mangy and distempered dogs which are allowed to wander about the principal streets of the city is worthy the attention of the proper authorities. In no other city in the world, perhaps, (Milan or Constantinople excepted) are those pests permitted to such an extent. Last week, a gentleman informs us, he counted in George-street alone no less than 179 (he gave up then) of "the meanest specimens of the canine tribe possible to imagine, nine of which were sprawling on the footpath in one lot in front of one of the leading hotels." There are few persons who will not agree with the writer in saying that "it would be truly charitable, not only to the public but to the unhappy brutes themselves, to destroy every ill-bred diseased dog, and to fine persons who allow some to run loose at certain times of the year."

WE have been unable to learn any further particulars concerning the late fatal boat accident off Garden Island. The police have ascertained that the names of the two men drowned are Frank Zella, a Swiss, 24 years of age, and Burnetti, an Italian, 21 years, but cannot learn anything about their calling or places of residence. Search was made yesterday for the bodies by the Water Police, under the direction of Sub-inspector Donoghue, but to no purpose. Further search and inquiries about the affair will be made.

A MAN named John Campbelton Parbury, alias King, attempted to kill himself yesterday with a bar of iron. He was taken to the hospital by three men named F. and E. Richard and James Brown, who stated that he walked into the blacksmith's shop at St. Mary's Cathedral, and offered £50 for anyone to kill him. He then seized a bar of iron, threatening to kill himself with it. He was prevented, however, from doing so, and it was noticed that he had already a cut on the head, which, he said, when he first went into the shop, had been done in his effort to kill himself. He expressed a wish to go to the watchhouse. On examination at the hospital it was found that he had a contused wound, four inches long, in two places on his head down to the bone. There was dirt in one of them. He appeared quite deranged.

THE Bathurst Times states that on the 24th February last, at South Brisbane, through the bursting of a blood-vessel, Ensign William Moore Mansell, of H.M. 12th Foot, died. The deceased was at Balaclava, Inkerman, and the taking of Sebastopol, and on his return to England he was sent to India. He was present at Cawnpore, Delhi, and the Relief of Lucknow, and when following up the rebels in storming a fort he received what might have been considered sufficient wounds to cause death, having his right arm shattered by a chain-shot, a large slug buried in his forehead, and several other minor bullet wounds. On his return to England he was presented by the Duke of Newcastle to her Majesty, who, in consideration of his gallantry, gave him a commission, as a mark of her esteem, together with a pension for the loss of his arm. He remained in the service, and was sent out to the New Zealand war via Sydney with a detachment of H.M. 12th Foot, under Colonel Kempt. The Lambing Flat riots between the Europeans and the Chinese having just broken out, the Colonial Secretary despatched the military to quell the disturbance, and Lieutenant Mansell shortly after sold his commission, and was for a time in Bathurst, and has since been living in Brisbane, where his death took place as recorded.

A MAN whose name we have been unable to ascertain (says the Yass Courier) was admitted into the Yass hospital on Thursday suffering from a broken thigh-bone and severe bruises. It appears the unfortunate fellow was working in a shaft on Watson's claim, near Murrumburrah, and was suspended in a cask making some repairs to the timbering, when the rope which was fastened to the cask gave way at a splice, and the unfortunate man fell about 10 feet, when the cask came in contact with a plank, and, rebounding, threw him into an adjoining shaft, which is about 100 feet deep, the cask falling on top of him. His life was saved through there being about eight feet of water in the bottom of the shaft.

"ANGLO-AUSTRALIAN" writes in the European Mail:—"I extract the following from a Sydney letter to The Ironmonger, with a view to make a few comments on the same:—'A new line of vessels, to run between London, Adelaide, Melbourne, and Sydney, to be called the Alliance Line, is spoken of as having been started with a view to break up the monopoly which is believed to have existed lately among the ship brokers with regard to Australian freights. The first ship of the new line is announced to leave London in December next.' The Alliance Line was started by a combination of ship brokers who had not previously been engaged in the Australian trade, but not receiving support from shippers generally it collapsed. Merchants apparently think, as a rule, that their interests are more likely to suffer from the disturbance of the freight market necessarily attending a struggle among rival ship brokers than to derive benefit from a new line being permanently established. This feeling especially applies to a new line simply on a familiar pattern. I am not aware that the promoters of the Alliance Line were actuated by any other motive than an honest desire to secure for themselves a share in the trade."

The action, Jas. B. Snook against the Board of Land and Works, for injury sustained in the Jolimont accident, was heard to-day. The plaintiff claimed £3000. For two or three weeks after the accident it was not thought that he had been seriously injured, but subsequently it was found that he had received a severe spinal shock, and he is now a broken-down invalid. According to the evidence he had hideous dreams at night, his hearing and sense of smell were affected, and he suffered in various other ways. A verdict was given for plaintiff for £1500.

The Tariff Commission sat yesterday at Castlemaine and Fryerstown. Two local iron-founders were examined. One said he only desired protection against poor and cheap imports; the other desired free trade, pure and simple. The mining and agricultural evidence at Fryerstown was all in favour of a reduction of the duties on machinery, powder, fuse, tools, agricultural implements, &c.

A frightful mining accident has happened at Egerton. A miner named Walter, in ascending the shaft, attempted to jump into an intermediate level whilst the cage was in motion. The officers found the following contraband goods amongst the cargo:—140,000 cigars, 250,000 cigarettes, 920 gallons spirits, 2¼ tons tobacco. The aggregate duty payable on the goods is about £2000. The pianos were, of course, destroyed. Considerable plunder had taken place.

A man named Henry Jones, stated to be of weak intellect, was admitted to the Hospital this evening, suffering from a gunshot wound in the calf of the leg. It appears that he quarrelled recently with one Clark, an hotelkeeper at Richmond. He went there one evening, and struck Clark on the head with a stick. The latter drew a revolver, which he is in the habit of carrying to frighten larrikins, and which, according to his statement, accidentally exploded. The bullet is supposed to be imbedded in the muscles, but the wound is not dangerous. Clark gave himself into custody.

A SINGULAR CASE.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

MELBOURNE, WEDNESDAY.

Dr. Cecil Jackson, formerly practising at Maryborough, and now residing near Adelaide, and who occupied a prominent place in connection with the Hilder case, which created a great sensation all over the colony a few months ago, was sued in the Supreme Court to-day by Hilder, of Maryborough, to recover £400, which sum he alleged he lent the defendant. The plaintiff was the adopted father of the girl for the manslaughter of whom Jackson was committed for trial by a coroner's jury, but the Crown subsequently entered a nolle prosequi. The defendant admitted that he borrowed the money, but pleaded that the claim had been met by promissory notes, due at 12 months, which were still current; that plaintiff, when making the deed of gift of all his property to his adopted daughter, had endorsed and delivered the promissory notes to Miss Hilder, since deceased, and that the latter alone was entitled to sue defendant. During the hearing of the evidence for the defence it was stated that the promissory notes in question, which were given as security for a debt, were burnt by Miss Hilder in the presence of defendant and his wife. Several witnesses were examined, and finally the jury gave a verdict for the full amount.

KIAMA AGRICULTURAL SHOW.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN REPORTER.)

KIAMA, WEDNESDAY.

The show held to-day at Blowhole Point, under the auspices of the Kiama Agricultural Association, was very successful, and well up to the average of past years. The entries were numerous. The weather was very fine, and the attendance numbered about 2000 people, coming from all parts of the district. The cattle shown were better than formerly. The horse sections were scarcely so full as usual. In poultry, the competition was keen. Swine were not numerous, but good. Dairy produce, grain, and hay were very fine. The office-bearers—namely, Dr. Tarrant, M.L.A., patron; D. L. Dymock, president; R. Miller, vice-president; James Colley, treasurer; James Somerville, secretary; and all members of the committee—exerted themselves successfully to make the show go off well. To-morrow the ladies' hackneys, hunters, and carriage horses and trotters will be tried. An interesting competition is expected, as the entries have been increasing each year, this time the number being 40. The steamer Allowrie, bringing 25 gentlemen from Sydney, among them being Messrs. Tarrant and Purves, Ms.L.A., made a good trip, and arrived this morning. Kiama was lively to-day. Preparations are being made to give the Allowrie passengers a picnic on Friday. To-night the usual show dinner takes place in the Church of England schoolroom. A number of the Allowrie's passengers visited the Blowhole this morning, and inspected Kiama generally. The following are the principal portions of the prize list:—Section I.—Horses: Draught stallion—Honesty, W. Budd, 1st; R. Miller, Royal Tom, 2nd; C. H. Jones, Captain, 3rd. The president delivered the annual address, referring to the progress of the Kiama district last year, quoting statistics showing that the future prospects of the Kiama district were good, and urging farmers to co-operate for the general benefit. He concluded by proposing the healths of the judges. Messrs. Theophilus Cooper, John Badgery, F. A. Franklin, and E. Du Faur responded. Mr. R. Miller proposed the toast of "The Parliament," which was received with applause. Dr. Tarrant responded, and eulogised the present Parliament; but regretted the want of a proper Opposition. He spoke of the benefit which the Illawarra Railway would do the district, and referred to his endeavours to obtain a grant towards the Kiama Agricultural Association, and the favourable reply from the Minister. He apologised for the unavoidable absence of Mr. Alexander Stuart, his colleague. Mr. Purves also responded. Mr. Samuel Marks proposed "Our Visitors," to which Messrs. A. T. Edwards and J. Hourahan responded. The toasts of "The Ladies" and "The Press" closed the proceedings.

THE V. R. C. AUTUMN MEETING.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

MELBOURNE, WEDNESDAY.

The Autumn meeting will be continued to-morrow (Thursday), when a first-class programme will be placed before the the race-loving public. Business will begin with the Hurdle Race, for which Handy Andy and Dhurringile head the list, and I fancy they are called upon to give too much weight away. Jack has a cold, and at the weights, Eros, Young Alfred, and Star of the West promise to produce the winner, and I like their prospects as named. Ten have been left in the Produce Stakes, which would appear to be a good thing for Guesswork, and he is likely to be followed by Fryingpan and Nadgee. The Corinthian Cup is rather open, but The Drummer reads well on paper, and he should have most trouble with Zambesi, Ween, and Handy Andy. At the time of writing, 26 remain in for the Australian Cup, for which it is thought that about 20 will start. After Wellington's defeat on Saturday he can hardly be dangerous here with the top weight, and Courtenay will probably be so in the interest of Sweet William, who will be served by a strong pace all the way. First Water looks and goes well, and his prospects for a place are very good; but I fancy the journey will be too far for Hesperian, while Guinea and Belladrum are doubtful starters; but Suwarrow must be very dangerous, for he is very fit and fairly revels in his work. Odd Trick may run forward, but the distance is too far for Waterloo, Santa Claus, Crystal, Attaché, Chuckster, Ween, and Napper Tandy. It is doubtful if Coriolanus has done enough solid work to show himself in his true form, but Saunterer should be one of the hardest to beat, and he or Narrabri may give us a surprise. Royal Maid has not received the confidence of her party, and Duchess will represent the St. Alban's stables, but she has been such a disappointment all through her career that I should be sorry to trust her. Blue Ribbon is about the best outsider in the race; but after the way in which Sweet William cut down his field on Saturday, I cannot look further for the winner, and as he will have Hales in the saddle, those who back him are sure to have a great race for their money. Pallio may also run well, but I think that the places will be filled by Sweet William, Suwarrow, and First Water, as named, and after them Saunterer, Blue Ribbon, and Narrabri may come. Although Darebin will have a penalty of 14lb., he should win the Grand Stand Stakes, for the distance will suit him, and he may be followed by Commotion and Santa Claus. The First Nursery Handicap is very open, and at the weights Solitude, Bassanio, and Boolka are likely to fight it out. The following horses did good work this morning:—Santa Claus, Fryingpan, Sir Joseph, Young Alfred, Elsinore, Bassanio, Tyropean, Darebin, Star of the West, Guesswork, Handy Andy, Hesperian, Great Western, Gudarz, Sweet William, and Courtenay. Most of the horses engaged in the Cup cantered. Sweet William hardened in the Cup betting to-night, and 2 to 1 has been accepted; while 100 to 10 is freely offered bar one.

The following is the programme for to-morrow:—

MINING INTELLIGENCE.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

TEMORA, WEDNESDAY.

Pelman and party are again getting stone of richer quality than ever. The specimens, as they are obtained, are lodged with the Bank of New South Wales, whose safe is crowded with them. It is expected that some of them will be sent to Adelaide for exhibition. Lucas and party are still getting splendid gold, and overtures have been made to the owners to send some of the stone to Adelaide for exhibition. Mr. Philip Davis, mining engineer, has gone to Barnedman, and goes thence to Wyalong, to report on a slate quarry for Sydney people. The Adelaide Company are now crushing. The manager reports that the tables are looking splendid.

TRUNKEY, WEDNESDAY.

The Lucky Hit claim, at Tuena, has crushed 10 tons of stone, which yielded 80oz. The Golden Point claim, at Trunkey, Deacon and party, have come upon some very rich stone. The Standard tunnel, Hade and Hunter, have cut three distinct veins, all bearing payable gold. Mining operations, however, are almost entirely at a standstill for want of water. No. 7, Crummie's, Boyd and party, have commenced baling, and are reducing the water very much.

ADELONG, WEDNESDAY.

Wilson and Ritchie started their second waterwheel last evening. By this means they use the water twice over, and with the present supply in the creek the combined power of the two wheels is more than sufficient to drive the whole of their crushing plant. The Annett's G. M. Co. crushed, at the Perseverance machine 47 tons for a yield of 166oz. 34wt. Twenty tons of this was in the rough. No dividend has been declared.

Mr. Lyell, of Melbourne, one of the directors, visited the New Reform Company, Lucknow, on Saturday last, and reports that it will take another six or eight weeks before the mine will be in full work on the extended scale upon which the directors wish to see it carried on. When the new company acquired this property the directors authorized the manager (Mr. Neeman) to erect new and stronger poppet-heads, so as to be able to raise stone in larger quantities with speed and safety; to raise the shaft about 20 feet; to construct a short inclined tramway from the top of the shaft direct to the battery side, so as to economise the expense of carting and handling the stone several times, as under the old system; and to substitute a new wire rope and proper cages with guides for the simpler but more dangerous means formerly used in descending and ascending the shaft. In consequence of a difficulty in getting the necessary timber for these improvements sent forward within the time expected, the completion of these improvements has been delayed very considerably; but every effort will be made to push them on as the timber arrives. In the meantime these surface works have made it quite impossible to work below, except upon a limited scale, as the stone could not be raised except in small quantities, and about 40 tons are now waiting below, which has been taken out of the Uncle Tom vein. The manager has also succeeded in pumping out nearly the whole of the water from the portion of the ground which contains the Perseverance, Industry, Hawk's Find, and other well-known rich veins, which were only worked down to the water-level, or about 180 feet. It is intended at once to commence working upon these veins from the old shafts, and also from the deeper shaft by a drive from the 300-feet level, and in about three months' time the manager hopes to have opened up a very large extent of payable stone. The operations up to the present time have resulted in small shipments of stone—one each in December and January, and two in February, which it is estimated will yield more than sufficient to cover all outgoings during these months.

The manager of the Lady Maria Gold-mining Company, under date of 6th March, reports as follows:—"The contractors have sunk 4 feet 6 inches this week, and the reef is now 15 inches wide. The stone is about the same as I took to Sydney, showing fine gold and full of pyrites. I think after we finish this contract and open out we will have a good lot of stone."

The mining manager of the Great Britain Tin-mining Company, under date 6th March, reports:—"The production of tin ore for the month of February was 41½ tons, during which period 68 tons have been dispatched from the mine."

The mining manager of the Nymagee Copper Mine furnishes us with the following report:—"For the week ending March 4 the quantity of ore smelted was 170 tons, producing regulus 60 tons, equal to 25 tons of fine copper. The copper in shed amounts to 228 tons of fine and 347 tons of rough."

The mining manager of the Hidden Treasure Gold Mining Co., Copeland, reports, per telegram:—"Extra rich stone in north back stope."

AMUSEMENTS.

"Marie Antoinette" was produced at the Queen's Theatre last evening for the last time. This evening Miss Ada Ward will take a benefit, when she will appear as Rosalind, in Shakespeare's charming comedy "As You Like It."

The concert given by Signora Fabris, at the School of Arts, Ashfield, on Tuesday evening last, attracted a very appreciative audience. The Signora was assisted by Signor Fabris, C. Huenerbein, two of her young lady pupils, and several amateurs. The duet, "Tel Rammenti," by Campana, and the solos, "A damsel fair was singing," by Gans, and "Spinning," by Cowen, were loudly applauded. A quartette from "Rigoletto" was vigorously encored, the vocalists bowing their acknowledgments in response. Signora Fabris was in her usual excellent voice, and gave the aria, "Mia madre," by Luzzi, very effectively, besides taking part in the concerted pieces.

Sir WILLIAM ARMSTRONG on NATIONAL DEFENCE.

The Times reports that on the 10th January, on his election as president of the Institution of Civil Engineers, Sir William Armstrong delivered an inaugural address on "National Defence" in the theatre of the institution, Great George-street. After some introductory remarks, Sir William observed that it was probable that the engineering element would in future enter more and more largely into the operations of war, until the issue would be chiefly dependent upon the superiority of mechanical resource displayed by one or other of the contending parties. There was no country in the world less disposed to be aggressive than our own; but there was none so likely to incite the greed of an assailant, or so vulnerable in relation to its commerce. England being the richest of nations offered the highest premium for successful attack, and as to commerce she had more than one-half of the ocean carrying trade of the whole world in her hands; and her ships, swarming over every sea and conveying merchandise of enormous value, would, in the event of war, invite the depredations of hostile cruisers. We had seen in recent years what ravages a single armed ship could inflict upon a mercantile navy incomparably smaller than our own, and in our case it was not only property but indispensable foods that was at stake. The ever-increasing population of Great Britain had already far outgrown its internal means of support, while the increasing cheapness of imported food so discouraged native agriculture that we might expect our future dependence upon foreign supply to increase even more rapidly than our population. England must always be chiefly dependent for security upon her naval power, but we could not hope that she would ever again be so dominant at sea as before the introduction of steam navigation. So long as naval superiority depended upon seamanship and an unlimited supply of sailors, no nation or combination of nations could compete with us; but as soon as it became established that fighting-ships could be manœuvred with more certainty and precision by the power of steam than by the power of wind, a revolution began which had gradually made naval warfare a matter of engineering rather than of seamanship. The introduction of rifled ordnance and percussion shells was the second step in this revolution. The most recent stage of this revolution was that marked by the introduction of torpedoes, against which our ponderous ironclads were no more secure than ships of thinnest iron. These constantly-changing phases of attack and defence had placed our naval authorities under extreme difficulty in deciding upon questions of ships and armament. To stand still was impossible, while to act upon uncertain data was sure to lead to mistake. The necessary consequence had been that types and patterns of ships had been continually changing, and vessels costing vast sums of money had become nearly obsolete almost as soon as made. We could not wonder that, so long as invulnerability was conceived to be attainable, great sacrifice should be made for its accomplishment; but with our present knowledge, which it would be unfair to apply to a criticism of the past, we might feel assured that invulnerability was a chimera. Not only did we see that armour was unavailing against torpedo attack and ramming, but we were justified in concluding that every attempt to increase resistance to projectiles would be quickly followed by a corresponding increase in the power of artillery. Our early ironclads, like the Warrior, were plated all over with armour 4½ inches thick—a thickness which could now be pierced with field-pieces. To resist the most powerful guns now afloat, armour of at least two feet in thickness was required; and in order to reconcile the constantly-increasing thickness with the weight which the ship was capable of carrying, it had been necessary to restrict the area of armoured surface to ever-narrowing limits, leaving a large portion of the ship without protection. In those magnificent and tremendous vessels which the Italians were now building, the armour would be withdrawn from every part except the battery, where guns of 100 tons would be placed, and where the armour would be confined to a narrow belt of great thickness. Everything of importance that projectiles could destroy would be kept below water-level, and so far as artillery fire was concerned, the ships would be secured against sinking by means of an under-water deck and ample division into compartments. Armour, therefore, seemed gradually contracting to the vanishing point; but, until it actually disappeared, it was probable that no better application of it could be made than had been decided upon by the acute and enterprising naval authorities of Italy for the great ships they were now constructing. As to the comparative liability of an ironclad and an unarmoured ship to be sunk by projectiles, there was much less difference between them than was generally supposed, because the unarmoured ship, though freely penetrable, might be so constructed that the entrance of water by perforation would not extensively flood the ship, unless it took place at a great number of critical places. Indeed, by introducing an under-water deck, with divisional spaces, and by the partial application of cork, as in the Inflexible, for displacing influent water, and thereby preserving stability, and also by a proper distribution of coal for the same purpose, an unarmoured ship might be rendered almost incapable of being sunk; and it was rather surprising that so little attention had been directed to the attainment of that object. It was not too much to say that for the cost of one ironclad we could have three unarmoured ships of far higher speed, and carrying collectively three armaments, each equal to that of the armoured vessel. It might be asked—Which would be the better investment? If it were imagined that the three were matched in combat against the one, it would be perceived that, in addition to their numerical superiority, the former would possess many advantages. Being smaller, they would be more difficult to hit. Being swifter, they could choose their positions, and be free to attack or retreat at pleasure. Being more nimble in turning, they would be better adapted both for ramming and for evading the ram of their adversary. Finally, the conditions of superior speed and agility would favour their use of torpedoes and submarine projectiles; although it was a question whether, for the sake of a much-needed simplification, it would not be better to confine that species of attack to separate vessels specially constructed for that one particular purpose. With the crews in safety, it was scarcely possible that unarmoured vessels, with under-water decks and all their machinery underneath, should suffer any disabling injury by being pierced in a few places by either shot or shell. But take the much more probable alternative of the armoured vessels being penetrable by the guns which would be used against her. In that case her enemies might elect to make the contest one of artillery. On their part, armour-piercing projectiles would be used which, on penetrating the thick sides of the ironclad, would carry inboard a mass of broken material far larger in quantity than the fragments of the shells with which they would be assailed, and quite as destructive in effect. The ironclad would have to sustain the converging fire of three ships, each carrying the same armament as her own, and her swift and nimble adversaries would steam round and round her, directing their fire on the most vulnerable points, and ever ready to seize a favourable moment to dash in and finish the contest by ramming. In either case, therefore, the ironclad would be over-matched by a combination of unarmoured vessels representing the same pecuniary value. Without entering into technical questions concerning fleet-fighting, it seemed reasonable to believe that the result would be the same if the number engaged on each side were proportionately multiplied. Lightness should be the special aim in the construction of such vessels. Steel plates should be used for the hulls, and guns and engines should be of the least possible weight consistent with the necessary power. Every ton of weight saved would enable higher speed to be attained, and there was probably no quality in a fighting ship which would so much develop in importance as that of swiftness. Messrs. Thornycroft had led the way in showing what extraordinary speed could be realized in diminutive vessels, by reducing to the utmost the weight of every part of the structure and its contents; and although we could not expect to attain proportionate speed by the same method in ocean-going ships of war, yet there could be no question that we might have far swifter ships than at present if lightness were made the principal object, instead of the prevalent practice of loading ships with cumbrous armour, in the vain hope of rendering them invulnerable. Light unarmoured ships, designed by Mr. George Rendel, had lately been built in this country for foreign Powers, which, with a displacement of only 1300 tons, had attained a speed of 16 knots an hour. They carried coal for steaming 4000 miles, and had already actually steamed 3500 miles without replenishing. They were each armed with two 10-inch new-type guns, which had nearly an all-round fire, and were capable of piercing 18-inch of iron armour, and with four 40-pounders on the broadsides. It was a very serious question what could be done in the event of a number of such vessels as these being let loose upon our commerce. At present there was not a single ship in the British Navy carrying an armament competent to engage them, that could overtake them in pursuit, or evade their attack when prudence dictated a retreat. Confidence was often expressed in our mercantile marine being capable of furnishing, on an emergency, a supply of vessels fit to be converted into cruisers; but where were there to be found among trading or passenger steamers vessels possessing a speed of 16 knots, with engines and boilers below water-level, and having an under-water deck to save them from sinking when penetrated by projectiles at or below the water-line? From his own experience he knew how difficult it was to adapt mercantile vessels to the purposes of war, and how unsatisfactory they were when the best has been made of them. The president then adverted to harbour defence. He pointed out that many of our ironclad forts had already outlived the stage of artillery progress for which they were adapted. He expressed his opinion as to the best method of rendering large guns effective in shore batteries. He dwelt upon the value of gunboats, considered as floating gun-carriages, and used in combination with torpedo craft and submarine mines; all of which, he suggested, might be committed to the management of trained naval and engineer volunteers resident on the spot. He said it would be a grand development of the volunteer movement, of which this country was so justly proud, if it were thus to be extended to harbour defence; and he was informed that, so far as the use of submerged torpedoes was concerned, a project of intrusting their employment to a corps of volunteer engineers was under consideration. Having described the progress of gun manufacture, and discussed the subjects of breech-loading and muzzle-loading and the mounting of guns in forts and ships, he urged in conclusion that our Navy was at present armed with guns which could not be expected to contend successfully with the best modern guns that could be used against them. Happily, most of the older ships of foreign Powers were in the same predicament; but all their new vessels, and some of their older ones, were being armed with artillery which, weight for weight, was far superior in power to that of our Navy. Our service guns had simply been overtaken in that rapid progress of artillery which had been going on for the last eight or ten years. But a new departure could not longer be delayed. An irresistible demand had arisen for breech-loading guns, and it was imperative to combine, with the introduction of that system, such other modifications of construction as would realize the increase of power which we now knew to be attainable. It might, however, be asked what better prospect of finality there was now than we had ten years ago. As to absolute finality, it would probably never be reached, but the country might take some comfort in the reflection that every stage of progress narrowed the field for further development. There was already no substantial room for improvement in the accuracy of guns; and as to power, we were nearly approaching the limit at which severity of recoil and extravagant length of gun would prohibit further advance. We might go on building larger guns almost without limit, though he doubted the policy of so doing, but mere increase of size did not revolutionize system. There seemed, therefore, to be more hope of permanency now than at any former period; but whether this were so or not, we could not, without danger, remain passive. What, then, should our Government do in regard to the great work of re-arming the fleet? He took it for granted that all new ships would be armed with the best guns that could be now made, and that the more important of the older vessels would speedily receive the same advantage; but beyond this, so long as experience of novelties was deficient, it was a case for cautious procedure. In the meantime, no expense should be spared in judicious experiments, seeing that the expense of experiments was trifling in comparison with that of mistakes. Above all, the Government should pursue such a course as would bring into full play the abundant engineering resources of this highly mechanical country for increasing the efficacy of our national defences.

THE NEW STOCK SALE YARDS.

Since the ceremony of placing one of the principal posts in position took place, in September last, the work of constructing the new sale yards at Homebush for cattle and sheep has been proceeding as rapidly as circumstances will admit, and it is expected that the yards will be ready for the reception of stock about June. One hundred and fifty men are engaged on the ground, a large number of whom live on the spot under canvas, and are provided with meals by the proprietors of two restaurants. The timber used in the fencing for the yards consists of blue gum, ironbark, turpentine, box, and other equally durable wood, brought down from the Manning, Brisbane Water, and the Richmond, and the posts and panels are of a most substantial character. The area of the cattle yards is about 15 acres, and consists of 104 pens, each 25 feet square, with lanes of sufficient width, and covered platforms, upon which purchasers are to be accommodated while the sales are proceeding. There are also 16 cattle receiving yards, several of which open from the railway siding direct, while the others branch therefrom, and 10 yards will open out to the delivery road, which is now almost completed. Every yard is to be paved with bluestone laid to a gradient that will admit of thorough drainage. The area for sheep will be 8 acres 2 roods, and will comprise 20 sale-pens, several drafting yards and races, and six delivery yards, the latter fronting Parramatta-road. The galvanized iron shed adjoining the railway line contains a boring-machine, two circular and several horizontal saws, and a stone-crushing machine. A forge has been erected at the back, and two workshops have been provided for the carpenters, about 50 of whom are at work. In those shops the gates for the cattle and sheep yards are being made, and they are massive and calculated to stand a large amount of rough usage. Comparatively little now requires to be done in order to complete the construction of the cattle yards, and six are already finished and paved. The sheep yards, however, have not long been commenced, but as the work here is of a lighter character, it will not take very long. All the pens for the sheep are to be asphalted, and every provision has been made for carrying out a proper system of drainage and cleansing. Considerable progress has been made with the construction of the dam at Powell's Creek, near the Parramatta-road, and from this source the water supply for the yards will be obtained—at any rate for the present—and it will be pumped into tanks placed at a sufficient elevation for use at the yards. Some delay has occurred lately owing to the fact that the timber cannot be obtained fast enough, but this difficulty will in all probability soon be removed, and unless rain sets in all the hands will be kept busy for some time to come. The timber seems to have been selected with a view to strength and durability, and under the supervision of Mr. Daniels, who acts as clerk of works, every detail is properly attended to.

ENGLISH AND FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, JAN. 27.

There is no marked change in the condition of Ireland, but there are less violence and outrage than prevailed a fortnight ago. In contrast to this redeeming feature of the Irish situation we have news of an alarmist character to-day, that the Government are increasing the number of military stationed in Ireland, and are displaying great anxiety relative to the secret machinations of Fenianism. In the course of the last few weeks it has come to be known that, under the guise of the Land League agitation, the Fenian organization has been detected in several of its ramifications. The statements of the man Connell and certain other informers have had a tendency to reduce the number of "Moonlight" outrages, and have led to the conviction of about a score of offenders. It is, however, somewhat disturbing to learn from the same sources of information that Fenianism is spreading outside and beyond the Land League movement. There is an impression abroad that assistance in the shape of arms and possibly of men is expected from the other side of the Atlantic, and that it is this circumstance which accounts for the recent additions made to the military force now garrisoned in Ireland. The decisions of the Assistant Land Commissioners have been reviewed by the three Chief Commissioners in their Court of Appeal, but with two or three minor exceptions the reductions of rent made by the Sub-Commissioners have been maintained. Only in very rare instances has there been any increase, and within the past few days the reductions of rent in one part of Ulster have gone to the enormous extent of upwards of 50 per cent. These considerations may well cause anxiety in the minds of the landed proprietors, and preparations are being made for a prolonged debate in Parliament on the operation of the Land Act. Another incident which is of a disturbing character has been the recent theft of six hundredweight of dynamite from a manufacturers' store in the neighbourhood of Limerick. An offer has been made to the Irish members who are now in prison that they shall be set at liberty and enabled to attend in their places in Parliament on giving their word of honour that they will not abuse the opportunity by continuing in Ireland the agitation they have set on foot; but the condition sought to be imposed has been indignantly rejected by Mr. Parnell and his friends, who will in consequence continue to pose as martyrs for another three months at least. Mr. Dillon is stated to be seriously ill, and will probably be released from confinement on that special ground. The latest rumour in regard to the imprisoned Land League leaders is that they have resolved on resigning their seats in Parliament in order that their votes against the Government on the question of the cloture may not be lost. The resignations will take place in time to enable their successors to be in their places before a decision can be taken on that question. The ladies still keep up their part in the Land League agitation, and some of them who were committed a short time ago in default of finding bail for their good behaviour have been set at liberty, and greatly to their chagrin, the fact of their release has been allowed to go by without the slightest public demonstration. This is hardly fame; it is not even notoriety. The rabid nationalist journal which bears the title United Ireland, has latterly been printed in London, whence a few thousand of copies have occasionally found their way into Ireland; but it is now announced that for the future the paper will be printed in Paris. Why the Government should have tolerated in London the publication of a treasonable print which they refused to permit in Dublin is one of those things that very few people can understand, and affords an apt illustration, if one were needed, of the half-hearted way in which the present Administration are and have been exercising the powers entrusted to them. in view of the Irish difficulty. Before this letter can reach you Parliament will be once more in full session. The Cabinet continue to hold meetings, at which they are actively engaged in the preparation of their legislative programme, and, as far as can be seen, that programme is not likely to embrace any proposals other than those that have heretofore been named in this correspondence. There are two preliminary difficulties—perhaps three—standing in the way of anything like practical legislation. The first is the question of whether Mr. Bradlaugh shall be permitted to take his seat either on oath or affirmation, and there is just a chance that the junior member for Northampton will succeed on this occasion. Then, again, there is the question of what are to be the future rules of procedure. As to this, the Opposition have not yet agreed on the mode in which they will meet the Government proposals. A small section, of which Lord Randolph Churchill may be said to be the leading spirit, are in favour of war to the knife. The majority of the Conservatives are thoroughly in accord with the Government as to the necessity of some reform of existing rules; but they decline to endorse the proposal that the House should adopt a cloture which can be determined at any time by a simple majority of members present. They naturally say, that if a debate is to be closed in this manner, the House will, in point of fact, be handing over to the Government the power of deciding when the discussion of any question before Parliament shall be brought to an end; and in this way her Majesty's Ministers for the time being will practically possess the means of controlling the functions of the representative Assembly. There is, however, no direct evidence as to the exact majority which the Government intend to ask the House to attach to the vote on the cloture: but it is to be inferred, from the speech made by the Home Secretary the other day, that they have made up their minds to the simple majority proposal with which they are generally accredited. If, when Parliament shall have begun the impending session, it is found that the Government are satisfied with a two-thirds majority, we may regard their action in the matter as an indication that they have yielded to the appeals of Sir Stafford Northcote and those who are acting with him, and are anxious to avoid a strife that might exhibit a larger amount of defection in the liberal ranks than they would at the present moment care to display. For my part, however, I do not think that such a course is likely, because the relations between the party leaders now-a-days are hardly of that friendly character which used to be a distinguishing feature in the attitude of the political chiefs of a bygone generation, and can scarcely be said to be marked with those agreeable traits which in the case of the former heads of the Whig and Tory divisions were quite as habitual as the ordinary courtesies and amenities of social life. Granted that the Government succeed in carrying their procedure resolutions, they will still have to sustain a prolonged and bitter attack on the part of Whigs and Conservatives alike, on account of the operations of the Land Act and their general administration of Irish affairs. In the House of Lords we may reckon with almost absolute certainty on a Government defeat on the Irish question, while in the Commons they will only save themselves by a purely Liberal majority, as the Irish members are sure to combine with the Tory party on this, as on all other crucial questions, in which the existence of the Government may be involved. It is fortunate for the Prime Minister that the number of his supporters has not been diminished to any serious extent during the present recess. The strength of the Liberal party is unimpaired, and although they have failed to secure the election of their candidate, Mr. Rowlandson, in the North Riding election, the tenant farmer champion ran his Conservative and aristocratic opponent so very close, that the result is regarded by the Liberals with as much satisfaction as could possibly be expected apart from actual success. The most remarkable fact in connection with this great political contest is to be found in the extraordinary language used by Mr. James Lowther, a member of the last Conservative Government, and one or two of his friends who have been stumping the northern county on behalf of the Tory candidate. These gentlemen have been accredited with the utterance of nouns and adjectives which, to say the least of it, are not customary in polite society, and whenever the occasion seemed to demand it they have not scrupled to apply the most opprobrious epithets to their political opponents, making it clear that the Conservatives are to be regarded as in a state of open feud against the farmers' Alliance and the farmers' interests generally. The issue of the North Riding election, though it has not proved a victory for the farming class, is nevertheless calculated to bring into a prominent place before the country on future occasions the whole question of rural representation.

In Egypt the demands made by the Notables have somewhat complicated the state of affairs in that quarter of the globe, and of all foreign questions which at present trouble her Majesty's Government none are of a more crucial character than this. The House of Notables has asked that the responsibility of the Ministry shall be made clear and definite, and that a period of five years shall be fixed for the tenure of office on the part of the delegates and president of the chamber. On these points France and England are not likely to raise any serious objection; but the Notables further require that joint control along with the international comptrollers-general shall be ceded to them. It is hardly probable that either England or France will agree to the latter demand, and if it be impossible to concur with the Notables on this matter, the fact of the chamber being elected by the military party, who in reality are the puppets of the Stamboul pachas, is likely to lead to serious complications, and possibly to an Anglo-French intervention. It is well known here that the origin of all our troubles in Egypt lies at the door of the Sultan. It is equally well known that the chief adviser of that monarch at the present moment is the German Ambassador, and inasmuch as it is the object of Prince Bismarck to foment discord between England and France in order to weaken the latter Power, the Egyptian question becomes a very acceptable instrument in the hands of the German representative at Constantinople. Russia declares her intention to have a voice in the matter, but to what extent she will persist in this determination is hardly yet apparent. There is no doubt that the origin of the Anglo-French arrangement for joint intervention in Egyptian affairs arose in the first instance from financial causes. Some years ago a member of the Credit Foncier, whose shares had undergone depreciation, suggested interference in the control of Egyptian finance, and a proposal to that effect was made to the English Government, by whom, however, it was declined. A fictitious agitation was then got up among English brokers and bankers, and the result was so far successful that her Majesty's Government reconsidered the matter, and finally, under great pressure, adopted the French suggestion. From that moment the English Ministry has been tied to France and the Credit Foncier, in regard to this matter. At any rate, such is the version given by M. Henri Rochefort, whose authority on matters of fact is not to be despised, whatever one may think of his political sagacity.

The debate on the Emperor's rescript, which has been eagerly looked forward to, not only by the German people, but by politicians of all grades in every part of the world, came off this week; and, although it produced a vigorous speech from Prince Bismarck in defence of the course he has taken, and was further characterised by the incisive and manly criticisms of the Chancellor's leading opponents, it has done little more than leave the matter exactly where it stood when the royal declaration was first promulgated. The address, in which Prince Bismarck asserted the prerogative of the sovereign, was marked by repeated and vehement outbursts of passionate oratory, which fairly took the German representatives by surprise. The tone, gesticulation, and language of the stanch old veteran at times almost deserved to be denominated furious, especially when he reached the point at which, taking a step forward, he demanded whether any one present would "dare" to prefer to his face the charge of cowardice involved in the accusation that he had been sheltering himself behind the Emperor. The most satisfactory part of the whole proceeding was the intimation that the reference made in the royal rescript to the action of the State officials was not intended to interfere with their personal independence.

During the past week the London Exchange has responded to the crisis that has occurred on the Continent. The collapse began with the failure of a Lyons bank. The effects of this soon spread to the Paris Bourse, which, but for the assistance of the clerical union—a well known financial association which has been established by the Catholic party in opposition to the Jew money lenders—would have come to grief. It is estimated that there has been a loss on the Bourse during the past 10 days of 60,000,000 of francs. The failures consequent on this event naturally disturbed not only Vienna and Berlin, but also London, and there has been a heavy fall in all our stocks. To-day is settling day, and though there are a few failures to record, there is no serious collapse, and the market closes with signs of a revival.

It is rumoured that the Government are contemplating the purchase of the telephones, but the fact has not been made known on anything like official authority. They lost a large sum of money by the purchase of the telegraphs about twelve years ago, and that is the only department of the Post Office that does not positively pay. There is an evident intention on the part of the stockbrokers to make the Government come down handsomely if they carry out their supposed intention, the prices of telephone shares having gone up very considerably since the rumour was first set afloat. This may have the effect of causing the Government to pause before absolutely embarking on an undertaking that is certain to be an expensive one whatever its result may hereafter be in connection with the public service.

The movement that has lately been got up in this country in favour of the persecuted Jews in Russia is extending, and meetings on the subject are being held in different parts of the country. The Lord Mayor, in response to a numerously signed and influential memorial, has convened a meeting of the citizens of London, and a second memorial, asking that justice may be promptly done by the Russian Government in this matter has been handed to Prince Lobanoff, the Russian representative at the English Court, for presentation to the Czar. The Prince, however, has declined to carry out the wish of the memorialists, on the ground that it would be contrary to diplomatic usage and precedent to forward such a document to his sovereign; and the memorial, consequently, has been relegated to the waste basket. The comments of the Russian press on this subject, and the remarks of the pro-Russian party in England, acquit the Russian Government from responsibility for what has been going on. These authorities assert that the persecution of the Jews in Russia is the result of ignorant fanaticism on the part of the peasantry; and not, as was the case in Bulgaria, the work of an alien soldiery stimulated and backed up by Turkish officials. Moreover, the Russian papers point out that the whole of the English agitation in favour of the Jews is being kept alive for political purposes by the opponents of the Gladstone Administration, with the object of damaging the Prime Minister and his party by ventilating the anti-Russian sentiments which are known so strongly to prevail on the Opposition benches in both Houses of Parliament.

There was a warm discussion at the Colonial Institute the other night, on the subject of Natal. The debate assumed a political character, and Sir Bartle Frere, who was present, defended the line of policy he had pursued while directing colonial affairs at the Cape. Mr. Fowell Buxton, M.P., and other speakers sharply attacked the ex-Governor; but some of the old colonists, including Mr. Pyne, rallied to the assistance of Sir Bartle, and the result was that he and his supporters can hardly be said to have suffered defeat.

The subscriptions to the Hawkins Hill Gold-mining Company have reached two-thirds of the capital required (£100,000), and an application is being made to the Stock Exchange to ensure the quotation of this investment. Mr. Alfred Fairfax, the chief promoter of the company, will return to Australia by the mail steamer which leaves here this week, and will personally superintend the development of the mine. Two of the directors have withdrawn from the company, namely, Mr. Hoskins Giddy and Sir W. H. Drake; their defection having been advertised by the Duke of Manchester, it may be fairly assumed that the existing directors are rather glad to be rid of these two gentlemen. Possibly, and this is the common cause of directorial resignations, they assessed their services at a higher value than their colleagues cared to recognise. The company has been challenged, as I have previously described, in other directions, but neither the letters of "Investigator" nor the retirement of these two directors have affected the success with which the concern is being floated. The chief difficulty that stood in the way of this project arose, not from the known facts respecting the prospectus of the mine, but from the general feeling of distrust which prevails in the English market against all new companies embarking in this species of speculation, chiefly because of the failures that have attended such ventures in the recent development of gold-mining in India. The Duke of Manchester is no mere figure-head in the Hawkin's Hill Mining Company. He takes an active interest in what is done, and thereby evidences the reality of his concern for the colonies, with which for years past he has shown so lively a sympathy.

Hanlan, who has arrived in this country from America, has already been feted by his English admirers. A few days ago at a dinner given by a number of his supporters, the chair was taken by General Goodlake, V.C., and a hopeful spirit was manifested in view of his coming contest with the Tyneside favourite. This is the only match that has been definitely made up to the present moment, and the date fixed for the event is the 3rd of April, the stakes deposited being £500 a-side. The Australian friends of Trickett who are resident in London are very desirous of matching that oarsman against the Champion for £200 a-side. Trickett, who is in Canada, is awaiting a telegram on the subject. Hanlan, it is said, wishes the stakes to be increased to £500 a-side, and the supposition that he deems it impossible for Trickett to raise so large a sum of money, although championship matches have hitherto been rowed for the smaller amount. The miners and boating men of Northumberland, who are the most ardent supporters of rowing in the kingdom, are hardly disposed to spare any money for Trickett, as they are literally scraping together every sixpence they can spare for the purpose of investing it on Boyd. In London Boyd is not believed to have any chance against Hanlan, but the friends of Trickett consider that during his sojourn in Canada he has greatly improved. It is certain that his American victory over a sculler named Plaisted was an easy one, and some of the friends of Hanlan, who has since been rowing in practice with Plaisted, make no secret of Hanlan's indisposition to meet Trickett.

All the meat brought over by the Europa has been sold at an average of 5¼d. per lb. We may assume that everything above 4½d. has been net profit, say 1¼d. per lb. Some of the meat was about fourteen days on board the vessel after its arrival in port; but at the end of that period the whole had been disposed of, with the exception of some 1200 carcases which had been stored in a refrigerating chamber built by the Victoria Dock Company in connection with their warehousing premises. The charge made for this storage is at the rate of one farthing per lb. per week. In the metropolitan retail shops Europa mutton has been selling at the rate of 7d. per lb. all round, saddles having reached 9d. The latter part of the shipment turned out to be of better quality than the carcases taken out in the earlier stages of unlading, inasmuch as the temperature was lower and the meat seemed to have been stored in a drier condition. It is possible that those portions of cargo that were put in last were shipped in damp weather. Partly from the fact, referred to and partly owing to the improved state of our own temperature, there has been less sweating visible on the surface of the meat when exposed to view in the open market than was previously noticed, and consequently the mutton has been more salable. The lambs that were put on board this vessel were sold with the sheep as small mutton. The idea of their acceptance at this season by the British public would seem to have been a mistaken one. Whoever can afford to buy lamb in winter can also afford to pay for the meat in its freshly-killed state, and, moreover, the flavour of the frozen lamb is not relatively so good as that of the frozen mutton. As to the butter shipped by the Europa, that has been nearly all cleared off at 10½d. per lb. It was rather stale, and hardly suitable for table use. I have lately mentioned one or two projects for floating frozen meat companies. I have now to add that for the present all these schemes are at a standstill. The impression is that the promoters are awaiting the arrival of Sir H. Parkes and others, who are known to be on their way to this country, and whose opinions it is sought to obtain before embarking on any further great ventures. At the last moment, however, I hear that probably in one case something may be done at an earlier date. The Cotopaxi is expected in a few days.

An extraordinary circumstance, so singular that it is only possible to hint at its character, has just occurred in connection with the publication of the Times. In the Monday morning's issue of that journal there was a full report of the speech delivered by Sir William Harcourt at Burton on the previous Saturday. In itself this speech was a long, able, and vigorous vindication of the conduct of the Government since they had been in office, and delivered as it was almost on the eve of the Parliamentary session, it excited an unusual amount of public interest. Some miscreant employed in one of the composing rooms of the Times interpolated in the latter portion of Sir William's address a single line, but a line so offensive that it would have disgraced even the worst records of the Holywell-street prosecutions had it chanced to have been discovered among the miserable trash that used to be vended in that dubious thoroughfare. The whole of the early train and post edition had been printed and sent away before the attention of the publisher was drawn to what had happened; but the instant the fact became known prompt and vigorous action was taken with the view of securing the recall of the many thousands of copies already dispatched to their customary destinations. Cabs, carts, and almost every sort of vehicle that could be procured on the spur of the moment were pressed into the publisher's service and sent to all the newsrooms, libraries, clubs, hotels, and public-houses, the addresses of which appeared on the Times list of regular subscribers; and, in addition to this, the telegrams were forwarded after all the paper trains, which were stopped at the first convenient stations and relieved of the parcels sent from the offices of Messrs. Smith and the other great newspaper agents for distribution along the different lines of railway. Beyond all this private subscribers were written to and asked to return the early copies dispatched by the mornings post, and in point of fact everything that a lavish expenditure of money and an indefatigable employment of labour could possibly do was done in order that the attempted pollution of the public mind might be restricted to the narrowest limits. Up to the present moment the proprietors have been unsuccessful in their efforts to get at the individual who was the real culprit; but failing this they are said to have dismissed the whole of the compositors—between 40 and 50 in number—employed in the particular room from which the offensive matter emanated. Rumour connects the trick so unmercifully played on the proprietors of the Times with some arbitrary exercise of authority on the part of one of the managers of that paper, and the action of that individual in dismissing several of the compositors is traced to the room that has been so summarily denuded of its customary occupants.

In this week's Truth, under the title of "Society in India and Australia," there is a smartly written paper, wherein those two dependencies of the British Crown are brought into contrast, greatly, I am bound to say, in favour of Australia as far as the home life and domestic character of the Australian people are concerned. Their virtues in these respects are compared with the unconcealed flirtations and generally lower moral tone pervading Anglo-Indian circles, and certainly they lose nothing by the contrast. The article is well worth perusal.

[We publish the chief portions of the article referred to by our correspondent amongst our extract matter below.—ED. S. M. H.]

From our files to the 27th January the following extracts are taken:—

POLITICAL.

It is now believed that the following are the principal changes in the Rules of the House of Commons which have been under the consideration of the Cabinet. It is proposed to limit the number of occasions on which the principle of a bill may be discussed. At present a debate may be raised on the principle of a bill on the introduction and first reading—usually, but not necessarily, taken together—the second reading, the motion to go into committee, the report, the third reading, and on the question that the bill do pass. In future the discussion of the principle of a bill will be confined to the introduction (when, if leave be given, the bill is to be read a first time, as a matter of course), to the second reading, and to the third reading. With regard to the power of closing debate, it is proposed that the Speaker (or in committee of the whole House, the Chairman) may, on his own motion or on the demand of a certain number of members, put the proposition that the question then before the House "be now put." On this question no debate is to be allowed, and it is at once to be decided by a division. A simple majority, except in certain stated cases, will be sufficient to carry the motion that the question be now put. The accepted cases will probably include the second reading of a bill, and votes of supply of an unusual character, such as votes of credit or votes for extraordinary naval and military expenditure, and in these cases a majority of two to one will be required for closing a debate. Certain classes of bills are to be referred to large select committees, partly nominated by the House and partly by the Committee of Selection; and with regard to these bills the stage of committee in the whole House will be dispensed with. The bills to which this rule will apply will be mainly bills on the principle of which no great difference of opinion exists, or which involve questions of administration rather than policy. The House itself will have the opportunity of discussing the details of such bills, and of making amendments on the report. It is proposed to facilitate proceedings in committee by providing that in committee of the whole House no member shall have power to move more than once during the debate on the same question, either that the chairman do report progress or that the chairman do leave the chair, nor to speak more than once to each separate motion; and that no member who has made one of these motions have power to make another on the same question.

The Home News says:—On what is almost the eve of the meeting of Parliament there is a vigorous renewal of extra-Parliamentary rhetoric. Last week Lord Lytton denounced the Government at Woodstock, and Mr. Childers reviewed his army policy at Pontefract. Lord Lytton's invectives against Mr. Gladstone's Cabinet and all its works were extremely violent, but were not very new, and his first appearance on a public platform in this country as a Conservative leader is regarded by the Times as disappointing. On foreign affairs, with which his experience as a diplomatist might be supposed to have rendered it natural he should deal, he said little except that thanks to Mr. Gladstone England was either under the uncontrolled initiative of France or under the ostentatious patronage of Russia, whilst she was contemptuously excluded from the secret councils of all other Continental Powers. In Ireland he declared the Prime Minister had only employed his period of office for the purpose of revolutionary legislation, the result of which was that the foundation of property was recklessly shaken, and the constitutional union of England and Ireland irreparably injured. The great historic Liberal party had gone, and in its place was a Radicalism whose influence was everywhere marked by some invasion of personal liberty or social freedom. Under these circumstances Lord Lytton explained that it was the duty of the Conservative party to rescue from Radical tyranny the ancient liberties, as well as the settled laws of England, the freedom of commercial contract and of Parliamentary discussion, and the freedom, in short, of liberty itself.

IRELAND.

Mr. Kelly, a commercial traveller for a Dublin company was arrested under the Protection Act in a train at Ballyhaimes while on his way to Dublin. At Edenberry Mr. Edward Wyer, a poor-law guardian, was arrested under the Protection Act and sent to Omagh Gaol under a strong escort.

Mr. John Moyle Mahony, supposed to be a Land League organiser, was arrested in Sackville-street under the Protection Act and lodged in gaol.

A man named Rattigan, bailiff to Captain Brown, Woodstock, county Galway, was beaten so severely while returning from Ballindine market that his life is despaired of. Six armed men, with blackened faces, visited the houses of two farmers, named Donovan and O'Neil, in the Glen of Aherlow. As they entered Donovan's house they shouted "No rent." One of them fired, but the shot only struck the lamp on the table. They dragged Donovan out into the yard, put him on his knees, and made him swear that he would pay no rent. One of the men then struck Donovan with the butt-end of his gun between the shoulders and threatened that if he paid rent he would shoot him. The party afterwards proceeded to O'Neill's, where they acted in a similar manner.

Messrs. M'Gough and Co., solicitors, Dublin, have, on behalf of Mrs. Moloney and other members of the Ladies' Land League, addressed a letter to the heads of the Metropolitan Police Department, demanding the authority on which they have been seizing copies of United Ireland, and threatening that if they are not within six days supplied with that information a civil action will be commenced. Only a few days since it was announced publicly by counsel for the Crown that the Lord-Lieutenant had directed the seizure of the paper mentioned. A consignment of 250 copies of the Irish World was seized by policemen at the North Wall, Dublin. The paper is dated New York, January 21, and is said to contain exciting articles with reference to Ireland. At the Great Northern Railway terminus, Belfast, the police seized nearly 400 copies of the newspaper United Ireland.

A report received from Castlerea, county Roscommon, states that a process server, named Thomas Abram, was shot dead in his own house at Glanlaghan, about 1 o'clock on the morning of January 23. A short time ago he lost one of his eyes from the effects of a beating received in attempting to serve ejectments.

A murder, arising out of the practice of boycotting, has been committed at Maryborough, Queen's County. A correspondent of the Daily Express states that a car-driver named Hennessy, who was in the employment of Mr. Gaze, was met in the town and so severely beaten that he never rallied, and died in the infirmary. He had succeeded another driver named Dunne, who, acting under the directions of the Land League, refused to drive for Mr. Gaze and left Mr. Gaze's employment.

The Pall Mall Gazette of January 27 says:—"The absence of Mr. Forster from the Cabinet Council on Wednesday is accounted for by the fact that Major Clifford Lloyd, the Special Resident Magistrate for the counties of Clare, Limerick, and Cork has brought to the knowledge of the authorities at Dublin Castle the existence of a wide-spread and dangerous conspiracy in his district. Major Lloyd has been able, it is said, through the medium of an informer, to discover the fullest particulars as to the membership, funds, and objects of this organization. The news is regarded as very serious at Dublin Castle, and the hurried despatch of more troops to Ireland is supposed to be thus explained. The 2nd Battalion Grenadier Guards, commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel Philip Smith, and consisting of 29 officers and 661 men, left the Victoria Barracks, Windsor, last night, en route for Ireland, whither it had been suddenly ordered. The battalion marched to the Great Western Station, Windsor, whence the Guards were despatched, with about 40 tons of luggage and several horses, by two special trains for Milford Haven. Crowds lined the streets of Windsor, and loudly cheered the troops as they passed on their way to the station, which was also thronged. At an early hour this morning the troops were to leave Milford Haven by steamer for Cork, which should be reached this afternoon."

The intimidation practised against farmers who have the honesty and courage to pay their rents or buy their farms from the sheriff is illustrated by the fact that a tenant named Moran, who ventured to buy in his farm at a sheriff's sale at Carrick-on-Shannon, was immediately threatened, and, being obliged to seek police protection, his father refused to remain in the house with him and told him he should leave the country. It is now reported that he has fled to America. A savage attack was made upon a young man of the name of Hyland, in the county Leitrim. In company with his father he had proceeded from Drumshambo to Mohill, in order to pay rent to the agent of the Crofton estates, and on the way had stopped at the gate of the bailiff's house to speak with him. This act was perceived by two men at work in an adjoining field, who shouted to him. On returning from Mohill the Hylands were stopped by three men near the spot where the former incident occurred, and the son was severely beaten. The father, who is an old man, could render him no assistance, but after the attack helped him to the police barracks, where his wounds were dressed and a description of the assailants was given. Two young men named Reynolds, sons of a comfortable farmer in the locality, were subsequently arrested and fully identified, and have been committed to gaol.

THE BALKAN PENINSULA.

The condition of things in the Balkan Peninsula does not improve. The Hungarian Premier, M. Tisza, in replying to certain questions put to him on Monday, declared that disturbances in Southern Dalmatia and Montenegro were so extensive as to require the most vigorously repressive action on the part of the Government. According to the Times correspondent there had up to Sunday last taken place eight engagements between the Austrian troops and the insurgents. There can be no doubt that the task which awaits Austria, who takes her stand on the ground that she acts as the representative of Europe in preserving order in the Herzegovina, is extremely serious. According to a correspondent of the Daily News Austria is bent upon a much more ambitious enterprise than she allows to transpire. The whole army, we are told, is being mobilised, and all the regiments in Vienna are ready to march at a moment's notice. Italy, it is added, is preparing for war, and its actual declaration is expected immediately in Austria. The alleged reason of this is the failure of Italy to secure from Austria the territory which she had expected, and the determination of Austria to lose no time in extending her empire to the shores of the Adriatic. These rumours are given for what they are worth, and for ourselves we believe there is nothing in them.

THE MONETARY PANIC IN FRANCE.

At the end of last week (says the Home News of January 27) there was a collapse and almost a panic on the Paris Bourse. The Bank of Lyons and of the Loire had failed, although it has since been announced that it will be able to pay its creditors in full. Its ability to do this depends upon its million and a half of uncalled capital. Whether it can command this is conditional on the solvency of the shareholders. Another cause of the financial crisis in Paris was the over-speculation in the Union Générale. This is a company which was started two or three years ago under Roman Catholic auspices, and was intended to show the world that the children of light might be as wise in their generation as the children of darkness. Its manager was a man of great ability and of high position.—M. BONTOUX. It was thus recommended to the devout bourgeoisie of France by their spiritual directors. Such an opportunity for speculation, invested as it was with such a halo of piety, could not be resisted. The bubble was inflated to larger and larger dimensions, and at last it burst. Severe as is the present crisis in France, there is a good reason to believe that it will not involve the ruin of any great business houses of France or England. The very fact that speculation is so widely spread causes the impact of the blow to be felt less severely. With much wisdom some of the London papers have taken the opportunity of pointing out that over-speculation amongst all classes is not confined to France. It is complained of in America; it undoubtedly exists in England; and the best advice which could be offered to many professional men and to many ladies who are anxious to increase their means by dabbling in financial enterprises, would be to ponder attentively the warning significance of the events which have just been witnessed in France.

AUSTRALIAN MEAT.

The mutton brought by the Europa (says the European Mail) is now nearly all disposed of. Rather than weaken the market by throwing a great quantity on at once, the consignees elected to place 1500 carcases in the refrigerators at the Victoria Docks, and the wisdom of this policy will at once be seen when we state that on January 14 700 carcases only were sent to Smithfield, and realised an average of a little over 6d. per lb. The high price realised is due to the fact that Smithfield on the day mentioned was very bare of meat. Since that date, however, a large quantity of beef and mutton has been received from the Continent, and prices now are not quite so good. The butter brought by the Europa has sold at an average price wholesale of 11d. per lb. A considerable quantity is being held back in the hope of obtaining even higher prices. While the butter is stated to be "very good," it is yet acknowledged that it is far inferior to the best butter produced in the English and Irish dairies, and before very high prices can be realised the Australian dairymaids will have to take a leaf out of the books of their sisters at home. We are glad to say that the constant importations from Australia are making both the meat and the butter better known and better appreciated, not only by the lower, but amongst the respectable middle classes. The butchers are gradually beginning to find this out, and a good many of them acknowledge that they can sell the meat far more readily if they label it as Australian, and give the name of the vessel by which it arrived. It is the same old story—put a good article before the public and it will sell in defiance of all opposition by interested parties. The British public have tasted Australian meat and like it, and the demand will in consequence increase, to the advantage alike of the grower, the exporter, the importer, and the consumer.

RUSSIA IN THE NORTH PACIFIC.

A naval letter from Hongkong, dated December 19, and just received at Plymouth, says:—"It having been reported that a large extension of the Russian naval station was in progress at Vladivostock, the place has been visited by Vice-Admiral Willes, and what he saw has apparently made so much impression upon him that a long despatch has been transmitted to the Admiralty upon the subject. A new dock for repairing ships and a slip for constructing small armed craft are in hand. A factory for the manufacture of torpedoes and additional batteries to strengthen the defence of the place is employing several hundreds of hands in its construction. The Siberian flotilla, instead of comprising, as in the past, two aged schooners and three obsolete gun-vessels, now consists of two floating batteries, four schooners, and five gunboats of the newest description. For the moment, Russia appears to have abandoned her hostile intentions upon Corea, but she seems to be none the less determined to constitute herself the leading naval Power in the North Pacific."

TERRIBLE RAILWAY ACCIDENT IN AMERICA.

A terrible accident occurred on January 14 on the Hudson River railroad. The train conveying the members of the State Legislature from Albany to New York was run into by a local train at Spuyten Dyvil Creek, situated on the outskirts of this city. The engine of the local train crushed into two Wagner palace cars, which were completely telescoped and instantly caught fire. The number of persons killed is between eight and 12, including Mr. Wagner, a member of the State Senate and the owner of the palace cars. Four bodies, terribly burned, were taken from the ruins of the train, and several others are still missing. Among those injured are several members of the Legislature. Eight persons were burned to death. About a dozen others were injured, but none of them fatally. Later particulars state that the brakeman who was sent out to the rear failed to signal a local train from Tarrytown, which ran into the palace cars on the Albany train. The cars caught fire. Nine persons were killed, most of whom were roasted alive, while 40 persons were injured. Senator Webster Wagner's body was only recognised by a memorandum-book in his coat-pocket. He was a highly esteemed Republican member of the New York Legislature, and was the inventor of the palace cars used on the line. His death does not affect the Albany Legislature deadlock, except to delay any further attempt to elect the Senate officers till after his funeral. An investigation has shown that the brakeman, when the train stopped, went about seven car-lengths back round the curve through the rock cutting. He then saw the Tarrytown train coming about the same distance from him. He waved his red light, but the train passed him at the rate of 40 miles an hour. The brakeman has been arrested, the officials believing that he neglected his duty. Among the dead also are a Mr. Park Valentine, of Vermont, and his wife, on their wedding tour, and who were married but a few days before.

THE MORMON DIFFICULTY.

An ingenious solution of the Mormon difficulty in the United States has been proposed by Mr. Maginius, of Montana. His proposal is to let Congress divide the territory of Utah, incorporating the western part with the State of Nevada, the south-eastern part with the State of Colorado, and the small northern part with Idaho and Wyoming. When this is done the Mormon power will be broken. A part of the Mormon population will then be citizens of Nevada, and will be only a minority of the whole State, while part will become citizens of Colorado, in a minority there. The small remainder will form a part of Wyoming or Idaho. The main portion of the Mormon population would thus become citizens of States which have already established constitutions and laws, to which the Mormons would of course be amenable. Such a division of Utah and distribution of its parts would, it is urged, not only be perfectly legal and proper, but would have the advantage that the new boundaries would be natural instead of artificial. The Watch Range, which now runs through the centre of Utah, would then form the boundary line between the States of Colorado and Nevada. Congress has abundant power to carry this plan into effect; and by thus blotting Utah out of the map would probably be spared the necessity at no distant day of adopting more violent and unpleasant measures with the view of bringing the polygamous Mormons under control.

THE DEATH OF CAPTAIN BROWNRIGG.

The Sultan of Zanzibar, writing to a friend in this country, under date 17th December, gives the following additional details of the death of Captain Brownrigg and several of the crew of her Majesty's ship London, in continuation of his Highness's preceding letter on the same subject, as published in the Times of the 4th instant:—"When our people reached Pemba they found a dhow there, having on board the men of the London. Thereupon Greville, the French Chancellier, went and took it and brought it to our vessel, the Star, and made it over to the captain. Next day Captain Matthews and the Consul Holmwood and Greville went in search of Hindy-bin-Katim, and in the course of a few days they discovered him hidden in a house. He endeavoured to elude them, but they fired at him and disabled one of his hands. They fired again and broke his leg. They then had him carried to the ship, and the surgeon on board attended to his wounds. On inquiring of him what had occurred, he replied that while on the way to Pemba they were hailed by a boat of the London, which fired at them and killed two of his men. 'On seeing that,' he continued, 'I also fired and killed the captain and some of his crew.' His own crew, he said, consisted of eight persons—namely, himself and seven sailors. 'Two of these,' he added, 'were killed, and I am shot, so that five of us remain.' Hindy died that same night. Then Matthews and his men went in quest of the five seamen, but did not find them. One individual led them to believe that they were at Zanzibar. One we have here in chains, and diligent search is being made for the remaining four. We have cause to complain of certain uncalled-for strictures passed upon ourselves by one who knows full well that we have spared no pains, but have used our utmost endeavours, posting guards at different points, and offering rewards to any who will bring us any information about the missing culprits. We can add no more at present, but on the return of General Matthews we shall direct him to draw up a detailed account of this lamentable affair. The French Consul has informed me that the dhow was not under French colours (meaning, I presume, that it had no right to hoist them); but that the man Hindy had been (formerly) the owner of a vessel which was furnished with a (French) passport. His conviction is that Hindy was a pirate. Our ship, the Star, brought the dhow and made it over to the London. This is a true statement of the case thus far, and we hope that it will be published in the London journals."

A native correspondent residing at Zanzibar gives the following account of the burial of the lamented captain of the London:—"Captain Brownrigg was buried at Nazi-Moja, near to the European promenade. His Highness the Sultan sent an entire regiment, commanded by Captain Ogle, to escort the funeral, and his Highness's band played the dead march as the party wended its way to the grave. His Highness was represented on the occasion by his Minister, Muhammad-bin-Sulâiman Mandarin. The death of the gallant captain has cast a gloom over all the nationalities residing at Zanzibar. Mrs. Brownrigg leaves for England by the outgoing mail."

OUTRAGE ON BRITISH SEAMEN.

The British Admiral on the South American station has sent home particulars of an outrage on six British seamen of the Barque Maxima, who were arrested at Tocapilla by the Chilian authorities, imprisoned, and flogged while in irons, being then released without any charge being preferred. The British residents appealed to the British Admiral, who caused representations to be made to the Chilian authorities, resulting in the suppression of the Commandant of Tocapilla. A demand for compensation has been preferred. The motive of the Chilian police is stated to have been the hope of obtaining payment of a substantial fine from the sailors before releasing them.

THE CONGREGATIONAL UNION.

The first list, amounting to £37,000 in definite promises of contributions to the Special Jubilee Fund in the Congregational Union has just been issued. In Wales a remarkable movement has been initiated in connection with the fund to reduce the debts on the Congregational churches of the principality, which are said to amount to £170,000. Of this £30,000 rests upon the Welsh churches in the Rhondda Valley—a district unhappily so well known on account of the terrible colliery disasters of recent years. Though the district is inhabited chiefly by colliers, yet, at a representative meeting recently held at the Ton-ystrad, the churches pledged themselves to raise the whole of this amount during the next eight years, with £10,000 interest thereon.

FOREIGN NEWS.

The committee of the French Chamber appointed to consider the revision scheme met on Saturday, January 21, and M. Gambetta defended his propositions, and, after discussion, the committee decided, by 24 to three votes, in favour of revising the laws relating to the Senate, and to the relations of the public powers, but made no reference to the subject of scrutin de liste. The report was presented to the Chamber on Monday, 23rd, and the subject was discussed last night, when, after a warm debate, in which M. Gambetta took an active part, the Chamber decided in favour of the views of the committee, by 282 against 227. On this result being announced, M. Gambetta, after a brief consultation with his colleagues, left the House amid the applause of the entire Chamber. The phrase relating to scrutin de liste was rejected by 305 to 116, and the whole resolution was then adopted by 262 to 91.

In the Reichstag at Berlin the subject of the recent Royal Rescript was discussed. In reply to some adverse criticisms, Prince Bismarck justified the issue of that document, and plainly declared that the Emperor was his own Prime Minister, and the policy pursued was that of His Majesty. The tone and bearing of Prince Bismarck provoked angry outbursts from the Liberal members.

It is reported that Prince Lobanoff, at present Russian Ambassador in London, is about to be summoned to St. Petersburg to assume the direction of foreign affairs, and that M. de Giers will be appointed Ambassador in Berlin.

A semi-official statement has been published in St. Petersburg declaring that the reports of Jewish persecution in Russia had been grossly exaggerated in the London papers, and hinting that those statements have been prepared with a view to create animosity between Russia and Great Britain.

Great excitement has been caused in Italy by an announcement that six Roman and Milan newspapers have been bought by a French company.

The Hungarian Premier in the Parliamentary sitting on Monday stated it was true that great disturbances existed in Southern Dalmatia and Herzegovina, which had rendered necessary the despatch of military reinforcements. The Prince of Montenegro had been called upon to adopt measures for preventing hostile assemblages and conspiracies within his State.

The Ottoman Ambassador in Paris has contradicted a rumour that the Sultan contemplated the deposition of the present Bey of Tunis and the appointment of Ali Ben Khalifa.

A resolution has been introduced into the United States House of Representatives calling upon the Government to demand the release of American citizens detained in prison in Ireland.

SOCIETY IN INDIA AND AUSTRALIA.

We extract the following from Truth of January 26:—

"An old Latin saying tells us that those who cross the sea change their sky but not their souls. This is, no doubt, in substance, true; but there are climates which not only influence the bodies, but also the hearts and the minds of those who live in them without being born in them. Of such countries India is a notable example, and, in a totally contrary direction, Australia is another. The former enervates, the latter invigorates. If it were possible to find two Englishmen in age, physique, disposition, and proclivities exactly alike, it would be a curious experiment to send one to India, the other to Australia, and at the end of twenty years to mark the divergence that would have resulted and the contrast that would be presented by the two. The Indian would be indolent in body and mind; not easily annoyed, but, once roused, highly choleric: polished in manner, and showing an easy tolerance to certain social sinners for whom the Australian would feel the heartiest contempt. Full of vigour, energy, and life, the latter would be developed in body, brimming over with strange experiences of men and manners, rough as to exterior, bourgeois in habits, but possessing that inevitable share of culture which comes from an extensive all-round experience. The two would scarcely have a topic in common. The manner of thought of one would jar as much upon the other as his habits of life. But the chances of true refinement are in favour of the Australian. Life in India is demoralising. Few return from the torrid zone better men than they were when they left the temperate—better citizens, better husbands, better masters. A stay of any duration in the Land of the Sun almost invariably deteriorates them in all these respects.

"In India there is little seclusion, little home life. The unattached men drop in at the houses where ladies are, at all hours of the day—except, indeed the sacred hours of siesta. The number of servants is in itself sufficient to prevent that privacy which at home is considered the special privilege of husband and wife. The attendants cannot be shut away, as in England, with closed house and windows. Then, as to guests, the married man or woman who, in India, would refuse to keep open doors for the unoccupied men, young and old, would be considered a churl indeed, inhospitable to the last degree. In stations where there are very few ladies such a man would be looked upon as a sort of Bluebeard; such a woman as a terrible prude. Prudery does not thrive in India, and is consequently even more unpopular there than it is at home. Bluebeardism is singularly out of place in a land where nothing can be kept locked up—not even the family skeleton. . . . .

"In Australia home life is as domestic as that usually led by the middle classes in England. Everything, in fact, is middle class, socially considered. There is no aristocracy to be aped, and, consequently there is but little snobbishness. Manners and customs tend downward to those of the lower middle class, whereas in India, the habits of life are those of the higher. The former is the healthier direction of the two, though by following it one misses many minor niceties to which we in England give a perhaps too prominent importance. But to set against these small losses there are many greater gains. No one will deny that the great middle class in England represents the most virtuous and well living portion of the community. Vice and immorality prefer the seats of the mighty or the haunts of the poor. In the decorous daily life of those whose lot is neither riches nor poverty, these kindred forces find little opportunity for the secrecy and concealment which are necessary to at least the first stages of their operations. In Australia therefore where social life is intensely of the homely family kind, the moral atmosphere is comparatively pure. In India, on the contrary, where society tends upwards, the very contrary is too frequently the fact. The whole constitution of society there favours the frivolous, the thoughtless, the seekers after pleasure's paltry sake, and in favouring these falls into a nicety with the proclivities of human jackals who invariably follow the army of the idle and unprincipled. The result is what might naturally be expected from such favouring conditions. India is a hotbed of scandal. Society at home of the class that is known as 'good' is very far from immaculate; but that of India can give it a long start, and then reach the winning post of superiority in this respect by a length at least."

During the past year the boats of the National Lifeboat Institution saved 956 lives and 33 vessels, besides which the institution granted rewards for saving 155 shipwrecked persons by fishing boats and other means. Since its establishment in 1824, the Lifeboat Institution has contributed to the saving of 28,724 lives from various shipwrecks, a number equal to one-half of what is required to man the British fleet.

FOR SALE BY AUCTION
at the
HALL OF COMMERCE,
SYDNEY,
WEDNESDAY, MARCH 22.

To Close a Partnership Account.

BRUNKER and WOLFE have received instructions to sell by auction, at the Hall of Commerce, Exchange, Sydney, on WEDNESDAY, 22nd March, 1882,
THE EDGERTON STATION, with STOCK as described in the above particulars.

THE IMPROVEMENTS consist of
Two SNUG COTTAGES, containing four rooms each, kitchen and outbuildings, overseer's cottage, four rooms and kitchen, large wool shed, blacksmith's forge; stock, horse, and milking yard; two cultivation, four horse and cattle paddocks, embracing an area of 1400 acres. About ten miles of fencing have been erected upon the boundaries.

The capacities of the run are equal to any in this locality, and as a guarantee to intending purchasers that it is only moderately stocked, it has carried for the present proprietors in ordinary seasons 15,000 sheep and 400 head of cattle.

The country is sound, and cannot be excelled for wool-growing. The pastures are succulent in character, and adapted either for cattle or sheep.

The station is bountifully and permanently watered. It is intersected by the Severn River, various branches of which are from the centre to the margin of the run, thus concentrating the stock, and rendering their management easy and inexpensive.

The Auctioneers confidently invite the attention of capitalists in quest of a permanently lucrative property to the sale of EDGERTON. Its position cannot be surpassed—the healthfulness of the climate is universally acknowledged—the pastures are of the very best description; and the stock, having been well attended to and carefully bred, furnish demonstrative proof that the investment is sound, and promises to yield an immediate and profitable return.

Terms: Half-cash; the residue by promissory notes at one and two years, bearing interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, secured by mortgage over the property in the usual manner.

The Auctioneers will gladly furnish further particulars to intending purchasers.

BRUNKER and WOLFE,
Auctioneers,
279, George-street,
Sydney.

ST. LEONARDS, NORTH SHORE.

IMPORTANT and EXTENSIVE SALE of
CHOICE VILLA SITES
and
BUILDING ALLOTMENTS, being a
SUBDIVISION of PORTION OF Mr. JOHN BLUE'S ESTATE, immediately opposite the
MANSIONS and HIGHLY-IMPROVED GROUNDS belonging to
G. R. DIBBS, Esq., B. O. HOLTERMANN, Esq., and other first-class properties, being within a few minutes' walk from the North Shore Ferry Company's Wharfs at LAVENDER BAY and M'MAHON'S POINT.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions from the proprietor to sell by public auction, on the Ground, on SATURDAY, 18th MARCH,
at 3 o'clock,

Portion of BLUE'S ESTATE, overlooking BERRY'S BAY, bounded by
UNION-STREET,
LITTLE BLUE-STREET,
THOMAS-STREET,
CHUTER-STREET,
and
HOLT-STREET,
comprising—
Section 5.—TEN CHOICE SITES, Nos. 1 to 4, and 9 to 41 inclusive, each having about 33 FEET FRONTAGE, with DEPTHS ranging from 100 FEET to 135 FEET.
Section 3.—TWENTY-THREE LOTS, Nos. 1 to 23, having from 40 FEET to 43 FEET FRONTAGE, with depths of about 90 FEET to 99 FEET.
Section 4.—TWENTY-ONE ALLOTMENTS, Nos 1 to 21, having from 33 FEET to 52 FEET frontages, with depths of 100 FEET to 105 FEET.

These building sites are most centrally situated on the beautiful suburb of North Shore, which stands pre-eminent amongst our suburbs for importance, grand and extensive views, and for being within such easy access of the city. North Shore has made such rapid strides within the last two or three years that, with the promised bridge to connect the suburb with Sydney, the site for which is close to these allotments, and also with the promised railway, it is indeed difficult to estimate the prospective value of these allotments when the numerous improvements contemplated are carried out, and on this account the Auctioneers desire to press upon the attention of capitalists, speculators, mechanics, and others the sale of these valuable allotments, within five minutes' walk of the
M'MAHON'S POINT
STEAM FERRY WHARVES.

The lots will be submitted in such a way as to give purchasers the opportunity,
WITHOUT COMPETITION, of securing consecutive lots at the same price for which the first lot is knocked down.
A large Plan of the Estate is on view at the Rooms, and LITHOGRAPHS are now ready for distribution.

TERMS OF SALE:—10 per cent. deposit, 15 per cent. in 3 months from day of sale, without interest, and the balance in equal amounts at 6, 12, 18, and 24 months, bearing interest at 6 per cent. per annum.

W. W. BILLYARD, Esq., Castlereagh-street, is Solicitor for the Vendor.

The land has a frontage of
189 feet to the ESPLANADE
118 feet to the CORSO
203 feet to a LANE
35 feet to FOUNTAIN-STREET.

HARDIE and GORMAN have been favoured with instructions from WILLIAM LAMBOURNE, Esq., to sell by public auction, at their Rooms, Pitt-street, at 11.30 o'clock,
WEDNESDAY, 22nd MARCH,
THE STEYNE HOTEL, MANLY BEACH, usually known as
LAMBOURNE'S HOTEL.

Perhaps no hotel out of Sydney is better known than the STEYNE at MANLY, where, for many years, a large and profitable business was conducted by the owner, and who has now retired on a competency. No position at MANLY can compare with this GRAND CORNER, commanding an unbroken view of the fine ocean beach, the grand Pacific Ocean, and the coast line northwards, as well as the many advantages which follow, particularly to a bar trade, from a frontage to the ONLY MAIN THOROUGHFARE leading from the BAY to the OCEAN, with sufficient ground available for the erection of other buildings.
For business purposes it will be admitted that an hotel facing the ocean will command a larger share of patronage from families and gentlemen than an hotel facing the bay, inasmuch as you secure the full benefit of sea air from the one position, without the disadvantages of the southerly wind, from which the bay is unsheltered.

The STEYNE HOTEL is at present occupied by Mr. Cohen, and the property is so substantially erected that another story might be added to it, giving increased accommodation for conducting even a larger and more lucrative business.
IMPROVED COMMUNICATION is now making MANLY BEACH more than ever ATTRACTIVE as a WATERING-PLACE, and the enterprising STEAMBOAT COMPANY,
it is stated, has ordered TWO NEW STEAMERS for the MANLY TRADE; in addition to which it is understood that a NEW WHARF for the public will be constructed in a short time.

The MUNICIPAL COUNCIL OF MANLY are striking out for the PROPER FORMATION of all thoroughfares, and evidences of this can be seen on the ESPLANADE, now planted with trees, and also on the CORSO, opposite to the STEYNE HOTEL.

The HOTEL itself is WELL BUILT, is COMMODIOUS, and well supplied with WATER.

The OUTLOOK at MANLY is BRIGHT, and INVESTORS CANNOT ERR in purchasing REAL ESTATE in that locality.
There is only one STEYNE at MANLY, and ONCE PURCHASED the opportunity may not again occur in a LIFE TIME.
Plan may be seen at the Rooms.
